The Confidence

of the public in a banking institution is reflected in the growth of its deposits.

The Old Colony Trust Company was organized in June 1890. Its deposits at intervals of three years have been as follows:

October 31, 1890 . . . $3.502,000 October 31, 1893 . . . 8,426,000 October 31, 1896 . . . 10,273,000 October 31, 1899 . . . 23,274,000 October 31, 1902 . . . 25,227,000 October 31, 1904 . . . 32,689,000

Its capital and surplus have been increased from time to time to keep pace with this steady growth, and a reserve of 25% of its deposits is kept constantly on hand, although only 15% is required by law.

The attention of suburban residents, and especially of women, is called to the convenience of its Temple Place branch in the shopping district, midway between Tremont and Washington Streets. A pamphlet illustrating and describing this office will be mailed on request.

Dear Sir:—
On the 11th of July last, you wrote me stating that you would submit the order of the Board of Aldermen, a copy of which I enclosed in my letter to you of July 7th, to your Board of Directors, and would advise me of their action.

Newton and in particular to the transfer situation between the lines operated by the Newton and Boston of any extension on the transfer privileges, as now granted, is a very complicated one, owing to the unfortunate inancial result of the street railway operation for the last few years.

We had hoped before this to be able to present to you a scheme for some changes in railway service that would have met the objections raised by the discontinuance of the free transfer system by the Newton and Boston Company, at least in part. Owing, however, to the absence of several of our Directors, it has been impossible for us to reach a conclusion at this time. We hope, however, to a able to formulate our decision within the next two weeks and I will communicate with you further at the earliest opportunity.

Very truly, (Signed) Adams D. Claffin, President.

A PASTOR'S TRIBUTE.

A life so gracious and helpful does not cease, even on this earth. Uniting with the Congregational church in Auburndale in 1858, she seemed to come naturally into a service for Christ rare in its devotion, variety and efficiency, and equally beautiful for the unostentations quietness with which she did it all. Constantly busy, but never in a hurry; making the trials and sorrows and sicknesses and need and even the sins of others her own care, but always with a smile; loyal to close friends, yet friend and counsellor to many whom others neg-lected; in loving communion with her Lord she went about doing good.

One choice service was in gathering into a "Pleasant Sunday Afternoon" class young women whose duties in households kept them from the regular services, with which were combined social evenings and helpful friendli ness which years of absence and miles of distance could not weaken. As superintendent of the Home Department, she brought scores into happy relations with Sunday school and church. Cottage prayer meetings were successfully planned. She knew the outer rim of the parish as most know only their familiar circle. Leaving Auburndale two years ago after the death of her father, Edward Strong, M. D., her home has been in New London, Connecticutt, but the same blessed activity went with her. She was in her accustomed place at church Sunday morning, February 2, and in the afternoon with the class of Sryian women which she had gathered. Taken ill that evening, grippe and pneumonia swiftly did their fatal The list of passengers sailing from Boston for the Mediterranean on Saturday contained her name, but that afternoon we gathered in our chapel for a tender farewell service. Her eager expectation had been to visit the land where Christ had walked He had something better for her, and sent His messenger saying "Thine eyes shall see the King in His beauty they shall behold the land that is very far off.

BENEATH THE GILDED DOME.

House of Representatives sits one of the most prominent members, and the reasons for his prominence are many and suggestive. He does not come from Boston or any of the large cities of the Commonwealth, but has his home in the little Essex Town of Ipswich. The Ipswich representative is by name George A. Schofield, and, although a Democrat, he has represented a Republican town since 1902. There are many men who, if they had the chance, would like to make over Mr. Schofield, and perhaps the new Schofield would be no improvement over the first edition. He is given to considerable talking, and at times one would think he was rather overdoing the thing, but he has a remarkable supply of logic, with which he annoints his speech, that catches the thinking element in the House, and pulls many of them away from their political moorings. Mr. Schofield is publisher of the Ipswich offices and belongs to numerous orders, but takes none from anybody. He is a good speaker, quick-witted, and slow to anger. These are very essential qualities for a man to possess, if he is to hold the same relation relatively among his fellow members as does his seat on the floor of the House

Pretty well to the front, over in First Division, in what the writer calls the "lucky corner," sits Taft of Worcester, the man who was in the race for Speakership last year with Luce and Newton, against Frothing-ham. At one time, many thought that Taft would win the prize, and perhaps he would have, if the power that shapes all ends, rough-hew them though we will, had not seen that Taft was needed at the head of the Judiciary Committee. The Worcester man, by virtue of his position as Chairman of the Judiciary, is leader of the House, and he is fully equipped by virtue of his ablity to succeed Mr. Newton, who held that place last year. Mr. Taft is a good debater, and is one of the best posted men in the Frothingham group.

As one sits in Mark London's beauty gallery, he faces three desks, the Speakers, the Clerk's and another which resembles the pulpit in some fashionable Methodist church. The occupant of this desk is Representative Ames of Orange, who would hasten to advise you that he is not a Methodist preacher, even if he is uni-versally proper, and a few minutes' conversation with that gentleman would reveal that his is a legal mind, rather than a meek and lowly follower of Charles Wesley in the search of the law. Mr. Ames was a Special Justice up in Orange before he was man of many strong points which he discloses as well in a social evening as in discussing the business of the Commonwealth. Although Mr. Ames is evidently well equipped for debate, he seldom takes part on the floor of the House, and is probably reserving his strength in that direction for the latter part of the session.

Representative Lowell of Newton was born in 1869 and took in Harvard College on his way to the House, where he arrived last year, and is therefore serving a second term. The Newton member has a fine voice for debate, and that, added to a good mind, enables him whenever he addrese the House to hold the attention of that body without the aid of the Speaker's gavel. One is reminded of a former member of the Lowell family, who not long ago was a member of the House, and is now a wellknown and valuable Judge on the bench of Massachusetts. Another promising young man in the House, Peabody of Cambridge, who, the start of him in age, succeeded in piano selections by Mrs. Donald Hill, entering the House, by the way of who played with exquisite taste and Harvard, at the same time, and who compiled much the same position in and recitations by Miss Morgan from the estimation of the observer, as does the member from the home of Congressman Powers. Mr. Peabody made the evening one of the most enmight be termed the running-mate of Mr. Lowell, so similar do they seem in natural abilities and mental training, and it will no doubt be interest-ing to note the career of these two ung members of two old and distinguished families, as they advance into the future of great possibilities for such as they. Blood and equipment are to be mighty forces in this

Last Thursday an event occurred in the House that attracted unusual interest and had a rather significant result. Representative Stevens of Somerville offered an amendment to duced as mediaries between the gods the rule, abolishing the practice of and men to the time of the renaisadvocacy of the measure. Hayes and Cole opposed, and the House refused the amendment on a roll call, by a vote of 100 to 91. Mr. Stevens gave notice that he would move to reconsider, on Thursday, and afterwards, by an arrangement with Mr. Hayes, the reconsideration was postponed until tomorrow.

From present indications the amendment will be adopted and the House will rid itself of the bad practice of what, in itself was intended for a good rule. The legitimate and proper use of pairing is really one of the wisest parlimentary practices in vogue, and the manner in which it has been used, demonstrates how extensively a good thing can be abused. Although Mr. Stevens fought the batwas pretty evenly divided upon the question, and enough members who voted against him had declared that they did not care how it went to make it pretty certain that the amendment will be carried tomorrow. Nothing will tend more to increase the genera attendance of the members and force them to attend to the duties for which they were elected, than to wipe out the pair system as practiced. The habit is becoming too prevalent for members to attend to their own affairs to the detriment of public interests and a little more attention to the State's business will result in improved legislation. Men should not seek to become legislators, unless they tion, even if they are obliged to neglect their own affairs, temporarily. The State has a right to demand the time and attenton of men who take the oath wheh binds them to faithful service in the most important branch of the State Government. The pair habit is not so venerable with age as to demand blind devotion, nor is it so essential to legislation as to be allowed to work the evil that it does at present.

The legislature is just entering into the strenuousness of its session, and now that a holiday week has passed it is expected that considerable work is to be done. Gas, Semi-Colon, Gypsy Moth and other matters will absorb the time of the legislature until the shirt-sleeve period shall arrive and the air shall grow heavy made the best part of the day.

Already attempts to unravel the snarl caused by the election last November are being made, and the question regarding the Republican candidate for Governor to succeed (?) Governor Douglas, is being asked with but few takers at the State House. Considerable effort is being made to rub down John L. Bates for the race, but the manner in which it the rubbing down process rather difficult. The truth probably is that Mr. Bates is on the shelf, so far as the Governorship is concerned, and along repose, the third term protuberance, no more to engulf the unwary. If Curtis Guild is not the logical candidate, it remains for the plaintiff to show cause. There probably never was a moment when the Lieutenant Sovernor was as strong as today, and it is doubtful if another man in the party could poll as many votes as he. Centainly not among those who have been mentioned. If it should not be General Guild, then it must be an out and out business man of undoubted strength and commanding abilities. Massachusetts has such a man,

At the end of five years she attempted to escape, but was captured and fourteen years more added to her sentence making twenty two years in all. Eight years ago she returned to Russia at the end other students exiled with her, only six returned, and the Madame the only well person among them. Of the horrors and tragedies she saw and endured words fail to tell and what has been written is not half as bad as the reality.

The following resolutions were unanimously adopted:

Mr. H. B. Blackwell who was at tending the meeting expressed his hearty sympathy with the resolve. As a fellow member of the Massachusetts Club he had been associated with Gov. Five years ago, the Hon. Samue Powers, while well known socially and in legal circles, was almost a stranger in politics. Tomorrow, he retires from a service of four years in the House of Representatives at Washington with a splendid record for ability, statesmanship and eloquence which has not only reflected honor on himself, but has been a source of pride to the district and more particdarly to his home city. Mr. Powers career in Congress has, moreover, made him a marked man throughout the state, and it is an open secret. that when his buisness cares will permit, still further political honors are in store.

Our criticism of the Auburndale petition for one school session last week was not directed at that community alone. It applies with equal if not greater force to the Bigelow district, and was written to create, if possible a counter sentiment against a plan which is sure to injure the physical and mental health of the pupils, and make trouble in the domesticity of every home.

The new police shift puts matters back to about where they were prior to the advent of Chief Tarbox.

Tomorrow Congressman Powers loses his title, and becomes a private citizen again.

The Social Science Club of Newton ment at the residence of Mrs. Charles will give a reception and entertainment at the residence of Mrs. Charles, H. Breck, I.G. Fairmont avenue on Tuesday March 7th from three until five o'clock for the benefit of the Nomantum Industrial School. Tickets" fifty cents each may be obtained from the committee in charge Mrs. A. M. Ferris, Mrs. F. E. Stanley, Mrs. W. H. Foss, Mrs. G. W. Priest and Miss Anna Whiting.

Under the care of the Social Science Club this school has grown each summer until the number of applicants exceeds the capacity of the school and many children have been denied the benefit of the industrial training offered them. The friends of the school hope by this entertainment to realize a substantial sum with which to help carry on the good work.

At the regular meeting of the Social Science club next Wednesday, the subject will be "Tendencies of Modern Novel writing".

The Newton Ladies Home Circle will have a whist at the home of Mrs. W. F. Hadlock, 321 Lexington st, Auburndale, next Wednesday afternoon.

The crystal anniversary of Boynton lodge of Odd Ladies, was celebrated Tuesday afternoon and evening in Dennison hall with a turkey supper and dance. Mrs. M. Millie Beardsley sang two solos and Mrs. May E. Clark read an original poem.

The First Siege Guns

The First Siege Guns.

It has been stated that it was in 1667, at the siege of Candia, in Crete, that siege guns were first used. This statement is contradicted, however, by a writer, who says that just before the siege of Constantinople a Hungarian or Wallachian cannon founder named Urban cast in 1452 at Adrianople a cannon "which remained for many years the wonder of Europe and marks an epoch in the continually increasing power of guns." Urban's cannon was dragged by sixty oxen to Constantinople in 1453 and threw a stone ball of 1,200 pounds weight. It was fired seven times a day and once each night. The Turks used at the slege two other cannon peach as large and thorester. cannon nearly as large and altogether had fourteen batteries, each containing four guns, along the length of the wall.

A curious story is told as to how the Rothschilds supported Carafa, the composer. The latter was far from rich. His principal income was derived from a snuffbox. And this was the way of it. This traffic continued till the death of the banker and longer still, for his sons kept up the tradition, to the great satisfaction of Carafa.

Marking the Boots.

A great many people on staying at an English hotel for the first time wonder how it is that "boots" can return to the different rooms the footgear placed outside the bedroom doors to be cleaned. This is quite a simple matter.

All he does is to take a piece of chalk, mark upon the sole of the boot the number of the room from which he number of the room from which he takes them and then sends them downstairs all together to be cleaned. When this has been done they are sorted, taken upstairs again and deposited outside their respective doors without the occupants of the different rooms knowing that they have been removed

Presence of Mind.

The following is a true story of an incident that happened in an English village:

A husband had gone out for the even Ing and left his wife and child at home. The woman was about to retire for the night when, to her amazement, she pernight when, to her nunzement, she per-ceived the foot of a man beneath the bed. Instead of calling for assistance, as some would have done, she coulty went to the child's cot and sat and sang till the child went to sleep. Two hours then remained before her hus-band came in. He was surprised to find her waiting up, but when his wife handed him an envelope, saying, "You might run and post this," the cause of her waiting was revealed. Instead of a letter the following was written on the envelope: "A burglar is under our a letter the Infowing was written on the envelope; "A burglar is under our bed. Run; fetch police." The husband returned in a minute with a policeman, and the man was arrested. The bur-glar when brought up before the mag-istrate remarked that he had come ncross a few brave women in his time. but this one must have had a nerve like fron, for she sat there for three solid hours. He had the impression that she didn't know he was there till the policeman pulled him out.

The Time to Charge.

At the taking of Moscow while the troops sat in their saddles under a murderous fire Murat, Napoleon's dashing chief of cavalry, received a dispatch to which an answer was required. Though his mettlesome horse was trembling. Murat laid the reins upon the horn of the saddle, took his notebook in one hand and a pencil in the other and behand and a pencil in the other and began to write a response. Suddenly a shell fell and exploded on the ground close by. The horse leaped into the air and swung wildly around. Murat simply transferred the pencil to the hand that held the notebook, calmed the horse with the other hand and then went on writing his dispatch as if nothing had happened. A shout of admiration went up along the line. Murat saw that the enthusiasm aroused by his trifling act had created a favorable motriffing act had created a favorable mo ment for a charge. He gave the order, and his men swept clear through the enemy's line.

Burke and His Associates.

The free and easy manners of the political and literary friends with whom Burke associated are exhibited by a personal anecdote. He often asked his friends to sup on beefsteak or a leg of mutton. One night the house sat late, and Burke brought home to suppose Fey and two or three more of sat rate, and Burke brought home to supper Fox and two or three more of the Whig politicians. Mrs. Burke's face told of the Ill provided larder. "Surely," said the host, answering his wife's look of annoyance, "there's beef

Fox and another gentleman, seeing the state of affairs, burried off to a tavern, where they obtained such dishes as could be purchased. Amid much laughter, they returned and set the table with the food they had for-aged. Burke called them the most skillful of waiters, and there was an amusing, satisfactory supper.

One of the oddest stories in the "Bestiarles," or stories of Bible animals written by the monks, is the legend of the panther. "The panther," so the homily runs, "is the most beautiful of all beasts. More than this, when it goes abroad it diffuses a marvelous sweet perfume. This odor is so sweet that all the other beasts and birds follow the panther wherever it goes. Wherefore the panther is a type of virtue." Perhaps the old monks who borrowed and embellished this story had rowed and embellished this story had heard of and misunderstood the strong love of sweet scents which the punthe and its relations, the lions and leop ards, often show.—London Spectator.

Menls and Weight.

It has been seriously asserted by many people that we are naturally lighter after a meal, and they have even gone the length of explaining this by the amount of gas that is developed from the food. Average observations, however, show that we lose 3 pounds 6 ounces between night and morning; that we gain 1 pound 12 ounces by breakfast; that we again lose about 14 ounces before lunch; that lunch puts on an average of a pound; that we again lose 10 ounces, but that an ordinary dinner to healthy persons a pounds 2 ounces to their weight.

A Coffee Calentation.

A variation of the old blacksmith calculation by which the progressive doubling of sums beginning with a cent for the first nail brings the price of shoeing a horse up to a stupendous sum is used by an Arch street grocer to advertise his coffee with striking effect. The grocer displays a sign reading, "If one grain of our coffee was placed on the first square of a checker-board, two on the second, four on the third, and so on, doubling throughout the whole sixty-four squares, the total number arrived at would be 18,446,744,073,551,615 coffee beans, or 7,000,153,394,584,601 pounds of coffee. This would represent 331,704,808,107 car loads, and a freight train to carry it would be 3,557,841,400 miles in length. It would reach around the earth 158,-It would reach around the earth 188, 313 times and would extend 42 times the distance between the earth and the sun. The quantity would make 13, 374, 337, 862, 902, 130 gallons of coffee and would cost at 28 cents a pound $872,407,300,806,397,20. Peculiarities of Lichens.

The lichen is remarkable for the great age to which it lives, there being good grounds for believing that they endure grounds for believing that they endure as long as a hundred years. Their growth is exceedingly slow, almost be-yond belief, indicating that only a little nourishment is necessary to keep them alive. In a dry time they have the power to suspend growth altogether, renew-ing it again at the fall of rain. This peculiarity alone is enough to make the lichen a vogetable wonder, as it is a property possessed by no other species of plant. Another interesting fact about lichens is that they grow only where the nir is free from dust and smoke. They may be said to be a sure indication of the purity of the air, as they are never found growing in cities and towns, where the atmosphere is impreguated with dust such smoke and other nated with dust, soot, smoke and other

This prominence beout of the siell. This profitmence becomes opposed to the shell at various points in a line extending all around the egg at about one-third of the egg's length from the large end. It makes a series of little holes, thus weakening the shell, and when the chick arrives at a certain stage of strength and de at a certain stage of strength and development it has no difficulty in breaking out. In the common fowl this little weapon drops off a day or two after it is hatched, but on the pigeon and birds that are fed by their parents it sometimes remains for two weeks.

Slingers of Greece. The Acarnanians were considered the most skillful slingers of Greece. These weapons were used not only to throw stones, but balls of lead, and in some localities, especially in the plain of Murathon, many of these metal projec-tiles have been found. ## Literary Notes.

Aside from its usual assortment of bright short stories, the March number of Pearson's Magazine includes eight special articles, four of which are particularly timely. The most important of these is "The Poisons We Eat in Foods," by Dr. H. W. Wiley, Chief of the Department of Chemisty, U. S. Bureau of Agriculture. In this article Dr. Wiley tells the results of the experiments carried on up to date with his famous volunteer "poison equad," the Government employees who are submitting to a diet of adulterated foods to enable science to de-termine the deleterious effects on the human system. "Galveston, the City Reclaimed," tells of the wonderfu engineering feat which in four brief years has enabled the flood-ridden city to rise from wreck and ruin to a model town of beauty and municipal reform. "McClusky, New York's ex-Chief of Detectives," tells of the stir-riog incidents in the career of George McClusky, the pupil and successor of Root Won the Six-Day Bicycle Race' is the inside story of how the recent endurance race in Madison Square Garden was won by a ruse. Kate Saint Maur's "Self Supporting Home," Elmer Porter's "Side Shows of Modern Businesses," Augusts Lerrok's How a Big Newsaper is Conducted," and a profusely illustrated account of the "Footprints of Beasts" complete the special articles. One of the aims of the schools of today is to encourage or create in each scholar an appreciation of and a love for the beautiful. Many branches are taught with this end in view, and in almost every schoolroom may be found two or three good pictures, and often a statue or bust. To the schools of New England has come an extraordinary opportunity. It is possible to obtain, through the generosity of The Boston Herald, and the enthusiastic support of friends and pupils, a fine collection of art treasures, reproductions by Haus Gerber of famous statues, bas-reliefs and busts. This for the school. In addition, a favorite teacher may have the pleasure of a trip across the continent to the Lewis and Clark Exposition, at Portland, Oregon, and the most industrious pupil may win a prize of a cance, bicycle, desk or a shining gold piece. All this is to come through the liberality and enterprise of The Boston Herald, the paper specially edited and dedicated to the home and the school. The Herald prints a coupon cach day, pupils and friends save them, and the thing is done. Read all about it in The Boston Herald.

W. E. ROGERS, Register. boys are the wooers? Do any little boys have the early education in love that is given to little girls? When a little girl starts to school here are some of the things the big girls teach her the first year: When she cats an apple she is taught to count the seeds, while she thinks of some little boy and repeats a rhyme. In the spring the little girls gather dulsies and pick off the petals one by one while they think of some little boy and say another rhyme. When a little girl sees the first star in the evening she repeats another verse. When grown people take wedding cake home it is never the boys who ask for a piece to dream on and see whom they will marry. It is the girls.—Atchison Globe.

To most people self control means the To most people self control means the control of appearances and not the control of realities. This is a radical mistake and must be corrected if we are to get a clear idea of self control and if we are to make a fair start in acquiring it as a permanent habit.

If a man is ugly to me and I want to knock him down and refrain from doing so simply because it wouldn't appear well and is not the babit of the babit of the people about me, my desire to knock him down is still a part of myself, and I have not controlled myself until I am absolutely free from that interior desire. So long as I am in hatted to another I am in bondage to my latred; and if, for the sake of appearances, I do not act or speak from it I am none the less at its mercy, and it will find an outlet wherever it can do will find an outlet wherever it can de so without debpsing me in the eyes of other men more willing than I am to be debased. My selfish desire to injure the man I hate is counterbalanced by my selfish desire to stand well in the eyes seinsi desire to stand well in the eyes of other men. There can be no true self control so long as either form of selfishness dominates my actions. The control of appearances is merely outward repression, and a very common instance of this may be observed in the effort to control a laugh .- Annie Payson Call in Leslie's Monthly

Haleyon Days.

The seven days preceding and the seven days following the winter solstice were called by the ancients "hat-cyon days." This phrase to death eyon days." This phrase is derived from a fable which sets forth that Hal-eyone, a princess who grieved so deep-ly for the loss at sea of her spouse, was sent thither in pity in the form of a haleyon bird or kingfisher.

According to the legend, the haleyon bird had during the time of breeding the power of hilling the waves, and it was believed at this time the sea was always calm and might be navigated in perfect security. Experience, of course, dispelled this fable; but, like many another old world story, it has left behind it a distorted meaning.

In this case the connection between the old and the new significance is clear, for the term, once expressive of peace and calm upon the waters, is equally expressive of tranquillity upon the sea of life.

Danger of Hypnotism.

Even with the best understanding of the subject now possible, there is dauger in originating anything that pats a hypnotized person under his own control—in other words, that originates automatism, writes Dr. M. A. Veeder in the Medical Record. So long as the subject is under the control of the hypnotizer absolutely there is not so much danger, but let him go out under his own control—and he runs without a his own control—and he runs without a balance wheel. In this way auto sug-gestion, which fortunately is more dif-ficult and exceptional, may originate exceedingly unpleasant experiences. The writer has even cone to the conclusion that there may be causes of insanity confined to institutions that, if truth were known, are really

English Gardens and Ours.
There is a fundamental difference be-tween the English and the American garden. The Englishman's garden is well night as essential as his house. It is like an extra room to the residence. It is for the family rather than for the public. It therefore works itself into the developing consciousness of chil-dren, and garden love becomes as dren, and garden love becomes as much a part of the person as books and furniture and musle do. The American garden is likely to be all in the front yard. It is usually of the look-at-me kind. It is made for the public to see. This may contribute to public spirit and eivle betterment, but it loses in originality and vitality.—L. H. Balley in Garden Magazine.

Curious Chinese Prejudice

In the course of business certain London banks have occasion to send out large sums in gold coin to China. No sovereigns, however, will be ac-cepted which have St. George and the drigon on the reverse side. The drug-on plays a leading part in religious matters in China, and its figure on the coin is abhorem to the Celestal mind. The London consignees have therefore to pick out the older coins, having a shield on the reverse side, for trans mission to the cust.

A New Brand.

A prominent missionary bishop of the Episcopal church, according to the Washington Star, was in the habit of introducing aroung the Eskimos who were his special charges many things to amuse or interest them in order that he might gain their attention to his preaching. It happened, however, that in spite of the various ingenious inventions which he placed before them these sons of the arctic regions continued to be impressed by the white man's canned food more than by anything clack he brought with him. Being unwilling to cat the blubber and drink the oil of the Eskimos, the white man always came with many cans of meat and vegetables.

One day the bishop above referred to decided to spring a genuine surprise on the property of the control of the second.

decided to spring a genuine surprise on the natives. He had with him on this trip a falking machine, with records in the Eskimo tongue. He gathered his charges all around him in the little meeting house and started the machine a-going. Everybody was certainly puz-zled. At last a smile broke in upon the face of one.

"Canned white man," he said in glee.

The African Hyena.

"One of the great pests of Africa," said a traveler, "is the hyena. Lions and leopards do a lot of damage, but their skins, if they are shot or trapped, are some compensation for the loss they cause. The average settler, be he farmer, trader or official, rather welcomes their presence near his camp for the sake of the excitement which they afford, and very few men would besitate to sacrifice a bullock or several head of goats or sheep for the sake of bagging a lion. But the skin of the hyena is worthless, and there is no credit whatever in shooting him, as he is an arrant coward. He makes the night bideous with his howis, and in the dark he is very daring and will enter compounds and huts and carry off almost anything. Nothing is too old or tough for him. Horns, skins, old boots—anything is grist to his mill.

Nosh's Ark.

It was on Nov. 10, B. C. 2348, that Nosh and the animals came out of the ark, according to Archbishop Ussher's chronology. Several experts have enlouisted that they had enjoyed ample accommodation in the ark. Sir Walter Raleigh computed that there were eighty-nine distinct species of beasts to be provided for, 'or, lest any should be omitted, a bundred several kinds." He allowed that one elephant would want as much space as four beeves and He allowed that one elephant would want as much space as four beeves and one lion as two wolves, and found that there was room for 91, or, say, 120 beeves, 80 sheep and 44 wolves, which sufficed. One story or room would hold these, another their ment, a third the birds and their food, and still there was space for Noah and his family.

A fulgurite is formed by a boit of lightning. A geologist gives this explanation: "When a holt of lightning strikes a bed of sand it plunges downward into the sand for a distance less or greater, transforming simultaneously into glass the silica in the material through which it masses. Thus by rial through which it passes. Thus by its great heat it forms at once a glass tube of precisely its own size. Now and then such a tube is found and dug up. Fulgurites have been followed in to the sand by excavations for nearly thirty feet. They vary in Interior di-ameter from the size of a quill to three inches or more, according to the bore of the flash."

The Vastness of Texas.

This will help you to figure out just how large Texas really is. If you have a star mathematician in your family tell him the number of square miles there are in the big state, then miles there are in the big state, then tell him the population of the globe; then ask him if all the people in the world were placed in Texas and its soil divided out among them per capita how large would the man's farm be who had a wife and two children? When he gets through fluguing, then whisper in his ear, "More than half an acre,"—Texarkama (Tex.) Courier.

President Claflin said that this was a familiar question as it had first been presented in 1901. The present track facilities are inadequate to properly handle the business that goes over that thoroughfare. There is but one turnout between Lower Falls and West Newton, and that is not located so as to accommodate the solution is to place a turnout where it will accommodate the traffic. The proposed double track will answer this purpose, being virtually a long turnout. Many complaints are received each summer from the blockades resulting from the present accommoda.

While he sets forth in quest of his Dulcianea, Sancho encounters his fiancee, Grisel, who informs him that her mistress, Florisena, has made a tryst with Tirante at her garden gate at midnight, and that their words have been overheard by some villianous looking revelers at the Carnival. Grisel promises to meet Sancho at the garden after her mistress comes out. But unfortunately for the plans of Zaragoza for abducting Florisena, Grisel comes to the Garden gate before her mis-tress, and is mistaken by the banditti for Florisena. The maid is therefore abducted instead of the mistress; and this is known only to the timorous Sancho, who, during the abduction, has concealed himself in the garden. Tirante, who has song a seren ade to Florisena, is captured by the banditti and tied to a tree in the garden. The rescuing party are all captured by the banditti, Sancho meanwhile being made the scul-lion of the robber's camp. Dressed in Dulcianea's garments, at the instigation of Florisena, who comes into the bandit's camp disguised as a shepherdess, Sancho at last fetches the soldiers of Nevarez to the rescue.

BENEATH THE GILDED DOME.

There is at least a degree of difference between bravery and cheek. That fact has been demonstrated during the past few days in the demonstrated hearing held at the State House by the Public Lighting Committee on the bills to repeal or amend the acts of 1903 in consolidating the Boston Gas Companies. There has appeared at the hearings an assortment of interests in favor of the bills, and an assortment of arguments have been presented to the committee; but over and above all that has taken place has been the appearance of "Thomas W. Lawson of Boston" at the State House during the hearing. His course in thus presenting himself is an exhibition of cheek, rather than bravery, and it, therefore, is not surprising that Mr. Lawson has created no little sensationalism in his performance.

The exhibition of check rests in the fact that Lawson should come to the State House, and into a committee hearing, after libelling the legislature in the use of language of the grossest character and in the most offensive manner. In the opening of his "Frenzied Finance" trade, he openly charges that the Massachusetts legislature is bought and sold like fish and sausage in the market. He does not specify in his wholesale stigmatizing of the legislature, but so generalizes as to make the charge apply to past as well as present bodies, and not to a class but includes the legislative body as a whole. Mr. Moorfield Storey referred to Mr. Lawson in an argument in a court of law in the following words:

"You have got here a man as bad as the worst blackmailer. You have got here a man who has admitted corrupting the legislature of Massachusetts. This man is a self confessed briber, and he has confessed to it here on the stand".

It is difficult to describe the condition of a man who, having so maligned the legislative body, comes to the State House and stands up in a committee hearing, using the language which fell from the lips of Lawson last week. As he failed to pay for publishing his harrangue, of course, it has not been printed and the world must be deprived from reading that remarkable appeal. The pictures that appear in the papers from time to time of Lawson, do not by any means under estimate the personal appearance of the owner of "Everybody's." As he walked into the committee room the morning of the first day of the hearing he did not impress the beholder as a man in possession of any superior qualities of mind or body, and when he came to address the committee a day or two later, he did not disclose the secret of his greatness, if one should overlook what was alluded to above, namely, the wonderful cheek of the man. His voice, when raised above an ordinary tone is boisterous and ineffective, and when dropped to a comversational quality, it becomes commonplace and meaningless. It is perfectly evident that Mr. Lawson has made a wise choice in selecting his course in life, and choosing his method of living. He is particularly well adapted and will find less competition than in more worthy advocations. He had a characteristic audence; when he made one of his Lawson points they applanded as though they were paid for morrow, and it would be difficult to say when these gas hearings will be over, for Lawson, Moran, Colthurst, Yeaten and the rest are likely to trail along until the month comes that is spelled with three letters, and until we all get so tired of gas that we shall feel like lighting the tallow dips, and even go so far as to borrow light from the moon in the good old-fashioned way.

Is it possible that the poor old semi-colon is to be revived? It is intimated that Senator Lane is going to whip the poor, jaded and feeble little thing into another race. It may be that if thirty first class hotels be allowed to go until midnight, the existing appetite would be appeased, but we rather guess no! Where will be the ninety and nine about that time? The liquor interests have been very reluctant about coming forward this year, but we have a faint impression that when the jingle of the thirty pieces of silver is he d there will be another rus-tle like the coming of a Gypsy Moth army ... To be sure there is another point that might come to the surface if these thirty hotels should come up, and that would be the constitutional question; However, that would be a natter of minor consideration, of liquor legislation from its inception to the present day has been woven on an unconstitutional loom. woven on an unconstitutional loom.

out seam, from top to bottom, could stand the strain of a constitution

The argument of Counsel Snow of the Boston Consolidated Gas pany, was such a contrast to the har-angues of Lawson and Moran as to prove of exceptional interest to those who listened. He paid his attention entirely to the argument of Mr. Anderson, and completely ignored Moran and Lawson. This, of course, did not phase Moran at all, who had a list of twenty-five questions to ask Mr. Snow, and the committee set aside to morrow in which to allow the ques-tions to be submitted through the committee and have such replies as Mr. Snow might deem best to favor Mr. Moran with.

President Dana of the Senate was guest at the banquet of the Western Massachusetts Club last week, and the company enjoyed Mr. Dana's re-marks very much, especially when he read from a French book certain im pressions received by the author while on a visit to this country. The author said that when at Northampton he so-journed at a hotel where they charged $6 a day, and when he asked for something to eat about nine o'clock in the evening, he was told that the dining room was shut up, and that if he wanted anything at that time of night he would have to go out on the street and look for some bake-shop that might be open. It is now up to Northampton to rise up and explain.

Mr. Keefe of Fall River addressed

the House Friday afternoon on his motion to substitute the bill for the report of the committee to prohibit expectoration in public places and con veyances, and the bill was substituted. Could the bill reach the Senate, Sen ator Reed has certain amendments to offer which would practically prohibit expectoration entirely. Senator Reed submitted a list of his amendments to the devotees of the pie bench the other day, and it was voted that spitting would become a lost art should a law be enacted embodying the Reed amendments, and at the same time, Keefc's bill would be water-logged. Mr. Reed's principal amendment was that every spitter should be accompanied, when on the street or in any public place, by a Spits dog.

The biggest surprise of the session was during the debate the other day on the Semi-colon bill when Repre sentative Hickey of Boston announced himself as against the bill, and expressed his belief that Boston was better off as she is than she would be in allowing more time to sell liquor. The old query was again answerd. "Can any good come out of Naza-

This is the first winter in eighteen years that Governor Douglas has spent in the North. It has been his custom to go to Florida for the winter. It might be mentioned in passing that this is the first winter in eighteen years, that the Governor has had the same reason which now exists for detaining him from picking oranges in January. Perhaps he can go next winter all right, perhaps.

School City Government.

The inclemency of the weather ednesday evening had a tendency to debar a number from attending the Newton Equal Suffrage League meeting at the Claflin schoolhouse, but those who braved the weather had the pleasure of listening to a very interesting speaker, Mr. Wilson I. Gill of the Franklin Institute of Philadelphia, Pa.

The speaker was introduced by Mrs. Walton. Mr. Gill, without prefacing his remarks, went right into his sub ject the "School City" and told how after organization, the scholars especially the small ones became very much interested in the scheme and how in time they became good citi-ens. Among the many offices inens. corporated into this School City was a mayor, judge, clerk, and policemen He then portrayed how children at the different schools where this system had been inaugurated, after being caught in the act of throwing sticks, stones, etc, or using profane language were tried at recess or after school hours and if found guilty, were punished by being prohibited from speaking to any of their classmates for two days, or, to copy neatly and carefully twenty times the first law

He further stated that the educated people as a rule do not attend the primaries or caucuse. It seemed a matter of impossibility for the educated people to do so and said the duties of citizenship are so simple, easy, few and far between where citizens in general are faithful that statesmen and scholars have failed to recognize that the habit is an art. The School City is not a matter of curriculum. but of spirit, of school management and treatment of the pupils, by which they are led as citizens of a republic to do right instead of being directed or driven as the subjects of beneficent or evil tyranny. Its influence is constant, it does not interfere with recitation time. An hour a month for citizens and an hour a week for officers is all the time that must be given specially to it.

WHY SHE COULDN'T FIND IT.

Inquiry Into Early History of Ger-many Developed a Puzzle.

In the state department, where a fair knowledge of history is the one fair knowledge of history, information requisite above others, information concerning the earlier history of Germany was desired. The employee upon and the control of the many was desired. The employee upon whom this task of finding this devolves is a young woman who passed the civi service examination with an A1 grade She went to the bookshelves and looked in that section where the historical data of this country are kept.

"That's funny," she murmured after runninging through the volume, "Here is Germany, but these books don't go back far enough."

After another desultory search through the volumes she came and stood beside an elder woman whose early education, though by no means as comprehensive as that of today, consisted in learning what she did learn well.

what she did learn well.
"Do you know where the rest of Ger-many is?" the girl asked.
"It's all there," was the answer,
"But it can't he, because it doesn't go back as far as I want." The elder woman looked at the slip of paper in the girl's hand on which a date prior to the time of Frederick the Great was weitten.

LONDON'S OLD CLOTHES.

The Way They Change Owners Adown the Social Scale,

In those parts of London in which he penny is the standard of value the penny there is a traille in secondhand materi als of a sort that is unheard of in any city of America.

For example, a dress costing 100 guineas and worn by a woman of fashion on one of the days of the Ascot meeting will be seen perhaps twice thereafter, once at a garden party and again at some function remote from town, after which it becomes the perquisite of the lady's mald, from whom it is bought by an oily woman who maintains what is called a "ladies" wardrobe" in Brixton or Bayswater. To the dingy parter in which this oily mannered woman transacts her busi-ness come the wives of struggling attorneys, medical men and city clerks, intent on bargains, and to one of these the Ascot dress, "Positively worn by Lady G. in the royal inclosure," as the oily woman informs her in an awed whisper, is knocked down at the low price of 10 guineas.

Its new owner wears it until it is too shabby to be worn again, after which it is sold to a second rate wardrobe and becomes the property of a greengrocer's wife, who takes it to pieces, retrims it and wears it out of the shop until it is once more shabby. Then it is sold to a third rate wardrobe, where it catches the eye of some coster lady and is sold for 3 shillings.—Saturday Evening Post.

But Fowling in England.
But fowling used to be a merry and innocent pastime for boys, perhaps one of its greatest attractions being that it was carried out during the night. There was all the preliminary excitement about getting the net ready and preparing the torch, for the torch, mark you, is a most important part of the outfit. How patiently have we in the old days unraveled a heavy farm rope. which, dipped in a barrel full of tar, will blaze like an electric light! Of course bad to know the country oughly to go but fowling in those loue-ly places in the dead dark of a Decem-ber night. The blaze of the torch only seemed to make the darkness visible It lay like a great thick wall around one, and the birds when beaten out of the hedges came fluttering in the mo-unsteady manner toward the light. London Country Life.

Cat Island Cats.

On Sable Island, Of the coast of Nova Scotia, cats were introduced about 1880 and rapidly exterminated the rabbits, which had been in possession for at least half a century. In one of the bar-pors of Kerguelen Land, a barren and desoints bit of antarctic terra firma to the southeast of the Cape of Good Hope, cats escaped from ships have made themselves at home on a little latet known us Cat Island, which has long been used as a wintering place for sealers. Here they live in holes in the ground, preying upon sea birds and veloped such extraordinary ferocity that it is almost impossible to tame them even when captured young.

When to Anchor.

A minister has given this well defined exposition of the text, "And having done all, to stand." On some body of water near his home there was one day a race between two bonts. captain of one saw that he was get-ting behind, but he also saw that at the particular point where they were the current was stronger than the wind and that the head boat, though apparently progressing, was really drifting backward. Quickly taking in the situation, this captain of the rear boat cast anchor and won the race.

"They say that all the world loves a over," said the rejected suitor as he lover," said the rejected shifter as he ate his dinner from the mantchinee, "but there are generally two exceptions to the rule, the girl you want to be your wife and the man you want to be your sither-in-law."—Princeton Tiger.

THE INDIANS OF NONANTUM.

To the Newton Graphic: The true site of the Indian's No nantum being questioned. I herewith submit some items of historical interest in relation to that subject. JESSE FEWKES.

The first mention of the number of Indians in this especial vicinity is in the narrative of Roger Clapp. He came with a party to Watertown in May 1630, six months before the settlers who came with Sir Richard Saltonstall and made their landing and settlement at and near the place called Gerry's landing, now in Cambridge. Roger Clapp says"the old planter who was with them (Mr. Maverick) told them there were three hundred Indians in the vicinity. This party probably came as far as "the pines" at "Nonantum," He speaks of the shore at the place as being steep and high." These three hundred Indians dwelt in the vicinity of the Lemon brook which runs through Newton. There were Indians living in this place until 1676, when all the Indians in the vicinity were gathered by the court into the Indian town of Natick.

Daniel Gookin was commissioned in that year to report before the Legislature, the whereabouts and number of the Indians in the state. He says there are with Waban, near Watertown mill sixty souls." These he mentions in distriction from those who lived at Nonantum Hill and other places in Newton.

In 1646, in the proprietor's records of Cambridge, page 56, "It is ordered that the townsmen, Edward Goff, Edward Oaks and Thomas Danforth shall lay out the land that is due to the town houses at Watertown mill on ye south side of Charles River' In 1647, proprietor's record, page 136 is this item, "Laid out to ye inhabitants on ye south side of Charles river and on ye north side of ye highway to Roxbury from Watertown Mill, John Jackson, 10 acres, Renold Bush, 10 acres, John Kendals house, 10 acres, Richard Park Il acres Redfins nouse, 7 acres. Another grant at this time in Cambridge records gives Wm Clements, 10 acres. These are probably the first settlers under the Massachusetts charter in what is now the City of Newton.

These references locate the Watertown Mill on the south side of the River prior to the time these settlers came to Newton. Winthrop's journal mentions a Watertown mill in 1632. This was three years prior to the building of the present Waterown mill, which was not constructed until 1635. He also locates the Indians as being near the mill. A reference in proprietor's records of Cambridge these first settlers in Newton on the east side of the brook, now called Lemon brook and on the present Washington street at the Corner.

It was the same year, 1646, that the Rev. John Eliot came several times to the wigwam of Waban, which Winthrop says "was near the Watertow u mill." This was on the brook which Wm Woods places at one and one half miles above the ancient place where Saltonstall (at Gerries landing) made his first settlement in Watertown. The ancient "pines" was the land The ancient "pines" was the land between the outlet of Lemon brook and the marsh land above Fancuil. It is the earliest historic site in the city of Newton, and the archaeology of this locality proves it to have been the true location of the Indians.

The ancient road to Roxbury, until 1656 was quite near the river and through the "pines". When the writer came to Newton in 1838 he was told this by one interested in the es-"When the land originally called the 'pines' was improved by Mr. Hunnewell he, (to perpetuate the historic name) planted a double row of white pine trees upon either side of roadway from his mansion on Washington street to the river.' The relics of these trees are to be seen today, they are a full century old. The street (which intersects this called Charlesbank road, was first called Nonantum street for this same purpose, to perpetuate the name of an historic site in Newton, the site of the ancient village of the Indians at Nonantum. At the easterly part of the tract of land which was called the pines, is a natural landing place, a ledge of rock jutting out into the river. It was called within the memory of some now living "the landing rock" and "the diving rock." This is at the foot of the estate of Joseph Pearson Esq. This landing at the pines is mentioned in connection with the praying Indians and the Rev. John Eliot in our history as the place from which these Indians were shipped to Boston harhor, in the autumn of 1675, by the General Court. H. S. Dearborn's life of Eliot tells the pathetic story. He says, page 5, "they were ordered to a place called the Pines on Charles river two miles above Cambridge where boats were provided to receive them. Capt. Prentice with a party of horse was appointed to enforce the removal." He also says "about mid-night on the 13 of October 1675, they back away from the river. In the town ere transferred to Deer Island, Their spiritual adviser and faithful friend met them and councilled patience under their sorrows and sufferings."

Martin Moor's memoirs of Eliot says the praying Indians to the number of three hundred were shipped at midnight in three schooners at an hour's notice from the Pines to Deer Island Mr. Eliot met them at the Pines and prayed for them"

In 1639 page 68 proprietor's records of Cambridge is found a grant of land which locates one of the first settlers in Newton thus, "John Jackson bought of Miles Ives one dwelling house with eighteen acres of land on the south side of Charles river, in Cambridge bounds. Bounded on ye south east on Samuel Holly's on ye northeast upon Charles river, southwest being ye upper end of it joining it to ye common set out by stakes, ye north west bounded with a brook and he 'o reach to the middle of it" This seems to include the Daniels land on Washington street and the Brackett and on the river, or land east of the present Lemon brook. If so the brook ame between Wm. Clements Sr. 10 acres on the west side of the brook and J. Jackson's 10 acres on the east side of the same. Upon these two lots of land has been found so many implements of stone as to prove berond a doubt that this was the exact the Indian village at Nonantum prior to the coming of the English settlers. The Indian implements found upon this section of Newton and Watertown will number in the proprietors records of Cambridge page 56, 1647, was not the present Washington and Galen streets to Watertown. It was an old Indian path by the river which was discontinued in 1656. At the same time the street over the hill (Hunnewell's Hill) was laid out, see Cambridge records, pages 58-69-82-110-136. This ancient Indian path and old road was situated along by the southern bank of the river, and on the river side of the marsh land above the present Faneuil and Arsenal bridge, via the an-cient landing rock at the Pines, the Watertown mill on the brook, now called Lemon brook, and Water street, to the Indians' fording place near the present Watertown bridge. The Watertown mill mentioned in Winthrop's journal in 1632 was probably the same for which the stones were purchased for £110.2s aplece in 1628, and the millwright, Thomas Graves was hired for three years by the North Virginia Company the same year, and they were set up by him on Old-ham's claim as the name of Thos. Graves appears in the list of Watertown men with John Oldham, Wm. Woods, Robert Feaks, John Masters and others who took the oath of free-men in May 16, 1631. One of the stones used for grinding corn in this mill is to be seen at the present time inserted in the face wall of the Lemon brook. It was removed from the rains of the ancient Watertown mill by Mr. George Daniels, while taking out gravel for the roads of Newton in 1848. This fragment of a mill stone had been used as a doorstep to the mill building after its transformation to a brewery by Ensign Oaks Angier in 1747. It has this date upon it, as can be plainly seen at the present time "N. T. 1747."

The site of this ancient Watertown mill is now within the boundary limits of the city of Newton. It is important that it should be preserved as the oldest historic relic in New-

The ancient road which was discon tinued in 1650 was an old Indian path by the river but the ancient wall at this place was probably built by the first settlers for the convenience of the fish weirs, which Wm. Woods in his description of New England, 1632 mentions thus "A little below this fall of water (at the mill) the inhabitants of Watertown have built a weir to catch fish wherein they take great store of shads and alewives." He speaks of the fall of water thus "By the side of this river is Newton (the present Cambridge) half a mile westward of this plantation is Watertown (then at Gerries landing now in Cambridge) a mile and a half from this town (Watertown) is a fall of fresh waters which convey themselves into the ocean through Charles River." Mr. Woods estimate of distances brings this fall exacty at Lemon's brook. The records of Cambridge brings the Watertown mill on the south side of the river at this brook, and Winthrop's journal brings the wigwam of Waban at the Watertown mill. See his history of N. E. page 303. "And God prospered his endeav ors that he gave a constant lecture to them (the Indians) one week at the wigwam of one Waban, a new sachem near Watertown mill, and the other week at the wigwam of Cutsham kin near Dorchester Mill." This I think locates the exact spot on which Mr. Eliot's missionary efforts commenced in 1656. This was the same year that Edward Goff and two others laid out the land of the first settlers under the Mass, charter in the city of Newton, who came in 1646. After these men came, the Indians were soon crowded back away from the river. In the town records of Cambridge page 33 can be found 'In 1637 a planting field was fenced off including Nonantum and Mrs. Esther F. Boland, music and a 114 miles in the country." The planting field was partly cultivated by the —At Lass

CONCERT

The concert given by the Newton Centre Orchestral Club Tuesday evening was largely attended. Applause was frequent and among the most delightful numbers given was "An dante from Surprise symphony" by Haydn. In some passages the notes reminded one of the 'silvery stream' so often mentioned by poets. The charming singing of Mrs. Marie Kaula Stone, was encored time and again. Her rich strong contralto volce was delightful to hear. The Mozart Trio Club was appreciated by the audience and the Allegro moder ato by this trio was heartily applauded.

The Odions Boot.

The Odions Boot.

If there is one thing in our civilization more odions than butchery it is our footwear. It is an additional crime of flesh eating that it condemns us to the use of its hyproducts to crippie, deform, befoul and enfeeble our feet. What would our hands be like if we carried them about in leather boxes? The foot should be as presentable as the hand, as healthy, sun burned and almost as pilable. It needs the purifying access of the air and the stimulating effects of the outdoor cold and heat. Instead of allowing it this freedom we shut it up in a stiff, foul, unventilated prison, where its clammy pallor suggests vegetables that sprout in a dark cellar. We bind the toes together and doom them to atrophy until a foot is a thing to weep over. Happy the day when there will be no more leather for boots!—Humane Review. boots!-Humane Review.

A Thrilling Speciacle.
The top section of the Cresta run, at St. Moritz, Switzerland, known as the "Church Leap," is something steeper than the roof of a house, and to see one of the unsters of tobogganing nego-tiating it is, as the Bystander observes, a vision for the gods. But the most exciting place, without doubt, is at the finish. After a longish strip of straight and a sudden dip the course rushes up a steep hill and at the summit loses it-self in soft snow on the level. So ter-rific is the speed of the tologamer at this point that, although he brakes hard up the hill, he cannot prevent his machine from leaping skyward at the top. To see rider after rider sweep up that slope and fly into the air, landing twenty, thirty or forty feet off in a shower of snow is to experience an indescribable thrill.

How the African Eats.

At eating, the native African negro, having always first washed his hands and rhosed his mouth, sits upon the ground, holds the larger pieces between his teeth while he cuts off a bite with his kulfe, but does not use both hands to hold food except in gnawing bones. With the usual dishes he lays his right arm over his knees and, reaching into the pot, molds the thick mess into lumps about the size of a walnut, which he throws into his mouth with a jerk without scattering any of the food. To take out vegetables or soup he presses a hollow into the lump and dips with it. Politeness is shown to the host or housewife after eating by smacking loudly enough to eating by smacking loudly enough to be heard,

Negroes in Heaven.
"I knew an Irishman in Amesbury," Mr. Whittier once said, his eyes twinkling at the remembrance, "who was very much opposed to social equality for the negro. I said to him: But there are many Catholic negroes in Brazil, the West Indies and other places. Thy church accounts of them as it does of thee. And thee'll have to come to it in thee. And thee it have to come to it in heaven. Thee'll have to meet the ne-groes there on equal terms. I thought that I had silenced him with an unan-swerable argument. He sat ausling for a moment, then, looking up at me, 'And can't the Lord make them white in heaven, Mr. Whittier?'

LAW DEPARTMENT. NEWS OF THE WEEK

Questions on legal matters will be answered in this column and names of persons sending queries will be considered strictly confidential. Communications should be addressed to Arthur W. Blakemore, 80 State St., Boston.

Quaere:—During the heavy rain and thaw Thursday night a drain in the gutter in front of my house became stopped up, and the water overflowed into my cellar, and caused me much damage and inconvenience. The street is an accepted city street. Can I sue the city? I. H. B.

Answer:-The water which over flowed into your cellar was evidently surface water, as distinguished from water flowing in a well defined stream or channel, and generally speaking there are no rights in such water. Any owner may allow it to flow from his land to the land of another, or he may build obstructions on his land to prevent water from his neighbor's property from running on to his land. The law imposes on cities and towns the duty to maintain highways and keep them in repair, but this does not alter the rights of the parties as to surface water, so it was held for iustance in an action against the city of Waltham, that the city was not liable for the damage caused by water flowing in the street gutters through a number of connecting streets to point opposite the land of the plain-tiff where there was a drain which was obstructed, causing the water to overflow to the plaintiff's land.

If the city had attempted to drain the water by an artificial channel di-rectly to your land, that situation would raise a different question, which I need not now consider, but the answer to your question must be in the negative. Your only remedy is to grade your property in such a way as to protect your cellar in the future

Quaere:—My son has got into trouble at school with his teacher, who seems to be very much prejudiced against him, and threatens to have him expelled. Please tell me what I should do? W. F. S.

Answer: If it appears that you are unable to adjust your son's difficulties with the head master or superintendent, he has a right, if you request it, before he is expelled to a fair hearing before the School Committee. At this hearing the School Committee is not bound to proceed with all the formalities of a legal trial, but the committee is bound to grant him a fair opportunity to be heard, and to present all evidence in his own behalf, which he desires, and if the committee gives him this opportunity and renders a decision in good faith, and orders your son permanently excluded from the Newton Schools you have no further rights, except to be furnished by the School Committee with a statement in writing of the reasons for his exclusion. If the committee does not act in good faith, as if they do not allow him fully to present his side of the case before them, then you should apply for this statement in writing of the reasons for his exclusion, and after this has been furnished, he after this has been furnished, he may bring suit against the city for unlawful exclusion from the schools. titled to summon and examine the teachers and members of the School Committee, as to the reasons for his expulsion, and the question for the Court or jury would be whether or not his expulsion was ordered for sufficient cause and in good faith. If succeeds he would recover for whatever injuries have been caused him by the unlawful expulsion.

ELMWOOD GARAGE AND AUTO LIVERY.

The Elmwood Garage and Auto Livery is the latest inovation which Mr. George W. Bush has introduced to Newton in connection with his well known Elmwood Stables. The demands of automobile parties for the rental of machines by the hour or are met by Mr. Bush in a way that more than commands public approval. Knox touring cars, the ones which won the highest indorsement at the Boston automobile show, have been purchased by Mr. Bush for the patronage of Newton people. Experienced chauffeurs have been engaged and the cars fitted with canopies, hampers and all requisites of auto trips. The cars of the Knox manufactory are so well and favorably known that little is needed in the way of description. These cars are of "London smoke" color, heautifully upholstered and besides a chauffeur's seat contain seats for four persons. An inspection of them is invited.

Mr. Bush has also met the automobilitsts' wants in another direction. A part of one of his large buildings on Elmwood street has been remodelled and thoroughly equipped as a garage. All the mechanical appliances necessary for repair work have been installed, with competent machinists in charge. A gasolene well for charging purposes is among the features. Overhauling incidental to long journeys, may be done here by men who have a thorough understanding of the work. In fact, Mr. Bush has left nothing incomplete in his new enterprise.

Political Notes.

Practical Politics has the following item of interest to this community: NEWTON'S WELL BALANCED PAIR.

Warren and Lowell of Newton although colleagues and on the best of terms, are placed at two extremities of the house and, whenever they want to get together, the whole house stops to watch them. Lowell tends to the heavy legal cud of the contests, while Warren looks after the ordinary mundane affairs. Newton has long been fortunate in the men in charge who have come to the front for her, in many ways."

BENEATH THE GILDED DOME.

That interesting department in the State House, called the Senate Chamber, possesses a history and a flood of reminiscences are suggested that takes one back into the dim past, and recalls events of historic interest which gives to the stately hall a peculiar attraction. It is one of the best examples of pure Colonial architecture to be found in Massachusetts, and presents a strong contrast to the gorgeousness of the new Representatives Hall, to which the reader was recently introduced. There is something impressive about the Senate Chamber, even when it is vacant, that makes it peculiarly appropriate as the home of the sedate and mellowed body of men who have been gathwith here and there an exception, from the House below and been transformed by the solemn call to the Senate, into men who walk softly and speak humbly while they glide the seats that have been occupied by so many distinguished, and some ex-tinguished, men before them. One can hardly dream how it is possible for men who look today so exalted, to ever sink back into the calm stillness of the backwoods of political life, but so it has been from the earliest day, and so it will be likely to be as long as ambitions are satisfied and kindled by the outgoing and incoming of the waves of opportunity.

The forty seats of the Senate Chamber are arranged in a circle, broken in the center by the exalted chair of the President, while the desk of the Clerk and his assistants, is in the centre of the room. The floor oft the Chamber is covered by a thick and costly carpet, for no foot fall must break the solemn stillness of the place where men gather and impress the dignity of the Upper House of legislation upon the casual visitor. Upon this Monday afternoon, we pass the Guards, just in time to catch the inspiration from the invocation, as it was delivered by the Rev. Dr Horton, the popular Chaplain of the Senate, we watch the gathering of the honor; able Senators after a day of rest (how much they needed it) and see them enter upon another week of toil, with sessions varying from fourteen minuutes to almost an hour in length. It is the universal judgment of those who are familiar with the past few that the present, is the best Senate that has gathered on Beacon Hill for several years. Of course the presiding officer is first noted as the Chaplain's prayer is finished, and President Dana rises to open the business of the day. President Dana came into the Senate from the House last year, where he had served for three years on several important committees, and where he took a prominent part in the debates on the floor. Mr. Dana was marked for the future president of the Senate even before he left the House, and as soon as President Jones retired from the honorable body, the choice fell upon the Newton man with hardly an effort on his part to win the prize. Mr. Dana was born in the city of Somerville, during the week preceding the Battle of Gettys- and automatic lighting devices. burg. He is, therefore, hardly forty-two years old, and is among the young men of the Senate, which abounds in younger men than usual. It is one of the ambitions of the President to make, out of the present, the shortest session for sometime past, and it is becoming more and more evident that this ambition is to be tions,

The hearings held by the Liquor Committee, were concluded last in almost a tragic manner. The hearings of this committee are always overhung by a more or less tragic atmosphere, and sometimes one fancies drawn which separates the seen from drawn which separates the seen from the museen, the stage might reveal tragedies of awful moment to those who sit in waiting. The last measure involving the attention of the committee this year was House Bill 416, and was entitled "An Act to Regulate and was entitled "An Act to Regulate the Sale of Liquor near Railroad Terminals in Boston." When the matter was called by Chairman Laue of the limphrey and H. R. Nash, 34.

Committee, a lady took her place at the table, held in reserve for those who appear for and against matters considered, and entered he plea in behalf of the Bill. It would be uscless to undertake to produce here the appeal of this petition, but it may suffice to tell the cause for her appearance at the hearing.

She was recently discharged from the Asylum and is devoting her life to an en deavor to have the saloons about the North Station removed, for she lieves that it was in those places that her son's ruin was commenced and completed. The sallies of wit and quick repartee which were drawn from her by the proceedings, have rarely if ever been equalled in legis-lative hearings, the awful carnestness of the woman never allowed a smile to appear on her face, and the heare could almost discern the agony of a broken heart in the accent of her

It was by no means an entertain ment that morning in Room 444, and perhaps when the seals of the records are finally broken, we shall hear more about House Bill 416.

While the Ways and Means Committees is about it, wouldn't it be well to cut out some of the unnecessary extravagance at the State House as well as to see to it that some pub lic servants are underpaid for services rendered.

It would be easier for a big came to go sideways through the eye of a fine needle than it would be for some members of the legislature to get the House without the support of their local papers, and yet the local papers have to fight the City news paper and the legislature together, to obtain the printing of legal, notices that belong by right to them. The member should remember that the country newspaper does not have the same opportunity to bolster up a fake circulation that the city newspaper enjoys by going into a lot of prize schemes and competitive humbugs that are as unjournalistic as it would be unprofessional for a minister to engage in the lottery business to raise money with w pay for books for his library. with which to

Washington Letter.

Washington D. C. March 11, 1905. There is no doubt that a San Domingan treaty wil be confirmed by the Senate but it will be so little like the original treaty first submitted as to be unrecognizable by its authors The history of this treaty is some what curious. The Secretary of State who has during his eight years management of the department achieved such a big reputation as a diplomatis was ill and away from the department during the San Domingan negotiashall we say a journeyman in diplo-macy bungled the job. The President who thinks more of results than of verbiage and whose time was much occupied with other matters permitted the paper to go to the Senate as pre-sented and it is probable that he is as grateful as he should be for the care ful scrutiny and amendment that it has received from that body of law yers and strict constructionists.

The death after three days illness of the venerable Senator Bate of Tennessee is so far the most conspicuous fatality of Inauguration day exposure. There are many other less notable victims. It is impossible under usual Fourth of March weather conditions that there shall not be many deaths from grippe, pneumonia and other diseases from exposure. When one re-members that a simple vote of Congress might change the day of Inauguration from chilly and boisterous March the Fourth to sunny April the thirtieth, the day on which the first President was sworn in it is impossible to regard Congress as other than guilty of man slaughter through laches. On every fourth of March at of man slaughter through the Inauguration ceremonies hundreds of thousands of people unaccustomed to exposure are in the weather from five to ten hours, often without food and it cannot be otherwise than that many of them must succumb.

There is much interest in Washington and there will be more or less interest in the Country in the enterprise building a great Convention Hall in the National Capital. There is no city in the country more eligible or desirable for great conventions than Washington. The Capitol, the National Library, the National Museum, the great Department buildings, the White House, Mount Vernon, Arling ton, the Washington Monument are only some of the attractions of interest to patriotic Americans but there is no great meeting house. Congress at the session which has just closed voted to present to the city of Wash-ington the United States exhibit building which now stands in the St. Louis Fair grounds. The frame work is of iron and it is calculated that it can be transported to Washington at an expense of not more than $20,000, and completely rebuilt at an estimated expense of less than half a million dollars. It will make an admirable place for Inaugural balls and for other great assemblies.

It is expected that Washington will at no distant day have another Art gallery, the gift of Mr. Freer a multi millionaire and an art connoiseur like Mr. W. W. Corcoran to whose beneficence in art and charity the National Capital is so much indebted. If, as it is said that the financial centre of the world is shifting from London to New York why may we not expect in time that the art centre will shift from Paris to Washington? Senator Clark of Mentana has now on exhibtion in the Corcoran Art Gallery over two hun dred and fifty of the chefs d'oeurves of modern painters and owing to the great and increasing wealth of the United States there are no doubt millions of dollars in paintings and sculpture that will gravitate or shift from private galleries to the great public galleries where their refining and ennobling influence will be felt by the largest number.

The testimonial to ex-congressman Powers last evening was interesting not only for what was said, but for what was not spoken. The tributes to Mr. Powers were of a high char acter and delivered by men who stand well to the front in politics and bus iness. And what was better still they were fully deserved. The noticeable feature of the gathering, how-ever, was the cuthusiasm with which all references to the political future was received. While special efforts were made to keep the affair as nonpartisan as possible, the current of events is setting so strongly towards Mr. Powers as a political factor in this state it is plainly evident that only Mr. Powers consent is necessary to set the political machinery to work in his behalf.

The satisfaction which might otherwise have been felt in this city upor the appointment of one of its physi cians to the important position of medical examiner, is considerably mit igated by the fact that Dr. West's friends, in the preliminary canvass for the appointment had the extreme poor taste to circulate a petition de-rogatory to another Newton candidate. Such methods deserve the utmost disapprobation.

One session in the public schools means a hurried breakfast, an unsatisfactory lunch, a crowding togethe of the noon and evening meals, all tending towards undermining the physical health of the child, as well as a prolonged mental strain which cannot but affect the educational development of the immature pupil.

The Guv'nor.

The words "yer 'and, Guv'nor, ver 'and," have a cordial hearty sound and such will be the welcome given all who attend the production of E. C. Lankester's three act farcical comedy next Tuesday evening at the Channing church parlors. The deaf old Put ey boat builder, Theodore Macclesfield, with his unique language, comical perception of what others say especially when a proposal for his daughter's hand is understood as an offer for the purchase of a boat, his infectious laugh and his rough and ready manner is most amusing. Freddy Butterscotch, the stuttering lover, will keep the audience in a gale of laughter in his efforts to talk and others will have strong parts both of a serious and ludicrous character. The acts are laid in Butterscotch's Villa at Fulham and Macclesfield's boat yard at Putney and new scenery is being painted for the play. Some of those taking part, and who guarantee an excellent presentation are Mrs. Ralph Bartlett, Mrs. Howard Jenkings, the Misses Cox and Adams and Messrs C. E. Alvord Bros & Co have sold the well known James Hyde estate on the corner of Centre street and Clark street, Newton Highlands, consisting of a house, stables and about 250,000 square feet of land, with about 1200 feet of frontage on the two streets. The grantor is F. L. Milliken, and the purchaser T. Wentworth who buys for occupancy and development. This is one of the historic estates of Newton, being the old homestead of the Hyde family, long prominent in Newton affairs. It was originally owned by Norman Clark, who died in 1815, and was known as the Spring Meadow. In 1816 he set it over to his daughter Clarissa, who married James Hyde, the father of James F. C. Hyde, the first Mayor of Newton, who was born in the house now standing on the premises. This house is a well known landmark in this vicinity, and was built about 1820. It is opposite the large mansion house of the late James F. C. Hyde, and near the estate of the late A. F. Hayward. As far back as 1794 Centre Street was known as the Turnpike from Water town to Dedham. The place is assessed for $12,700, all of which is on the land except $1200.

ELECTRIC SHOCK.

One of the Not Uncommon Dangers of Modern Life.

One of the new and not uncommon dangers of modern life is that of getting in the way of a powerful current of electricity and receiving the entire discharge through the body. The effects of such a discharge vary, of fects of such a discharge vary, of course, with the strength of the current: there may be a simple sharp muscular contraction, accompanied by the familiar disagreeable sensation of an electric shock; these contractions may be repeated several times after the current has ceased, constituting true convulsions or they may be a persistent centinued muscular contraction; there may be suspended respira-tion while the heart continues to beat; both heart and respiration may cease, in which case death will speedily fol-low unless instant medical relief is at hand; or in still other cases, death may be instantaneous.

The first care is, of course, to free the person from contact with the live wire, and here great caution is necessary, or the giver of assistance may share the fate of the one he is trying to help. He must himself be insulat-ed before touching the victim's body, if the latter is still within the path of the current, and this is ospecially important if the accident has happened out-of-doors on a wet day. Care should be taken also not to let any part of the body other than the hands, ir rather one hand, touch the electri-ded person. It may not be possible to pull the thay not no possible to put the sufferer away from the source of elec-tricity, and if not it will be necessary to make a short circuit by dropping a stiff wire or a metal tool of any kind

ire. Insulation is best obtained by rubber Institution is used out in the absence of these, standing on a folded cont or a woman's slik skirt and putting on thick woolen gloves or wrappinig the hands in several tolds of slik. course must be dry. A dry board or several new papers, or, better still, both, may serve as an emergency insulating stock

When the victim has been freed the entrent he should be placed on the back, with clothing loosened, so that he can have pleaty of fresh air. In severe cases artificial respiration will dmost always be needed, just as it is in cases of drowning, and an early re-sort to it may save a life that would otherwise inevitably be lost. There is little else that can be done on the spot tor the sufferer, but he may need areful treatment subsequently to remove effects of the terrible shock he has received—Youth's Companion.

How British Cities Manage Public Utilities

One of the Most Tremendous Industrial Revo-lutions Since the Birth of Modern Civilization

FREDERICK UPHAM ADAMS

(Copyright, 1904, by Frederick Upham Adams.)

REAT BRITAIN is in the throes of a revolution. Her antique customs and venerated institutions are in process of destruc From out their ruins there is rearing the framework of an edifice which may typify a new civilization. The revolutionists are in absolute control, yet their numberless victories have been won without a blow struck in claim credit for a discovery. The United States is the most conservative nation on the globe, and Great Britain is the most radical. We smile at the visionary and hesitate to grant his theories the favor of a bored tolerance. Greift Britain elects ann in onice, m dorses and adopts his fancies and by the expenditure of countless millions of treasure, willingly raised transforms his dreams into monumental and seem-

In more than 100 of the larger cities of the United Kingdom the right of private ownership in public utilities has been repealed by legal enactments. Those of us whose knowledge of what has happened is confined to occasional faintest conception of the stupendous momentum of this movement or of what it portends not to England alone, but to every civilized country on the face of the earth.

Even more startling is the paradox that this municipal radicalism has developed among a people who yet du-pidly cling to obsolete customs and traditions and whose commercial and manufacturing prestige is menaced by their refusal to adopt methods and devices of proved superiority. It shall be my purpose to show in accurate contrasts the products of the new radicalism and time worn institutions which surround them.

It had been represented to me that our English neighbors were divided into two classes in the matter of pub-lic ownership of such undertakings as street railways, gas and electric light-ing plants, baths and washhouses, tenement bouses and cottages, docks, mumicipal farms and other enterprises which have been completed or are in progress of construction. I had been led to believe from refterated statements in various publications that a powerful and aggressive minority of the English people were arrayed against any extension of municipally owned works and that through their in-fluence a halt had been called. The simple truth of the matter is that there is no organized opposition in Great Britain against the public own-ership of utilities which naturally tend to monopolize control. There are individuals who protest against what has been done and who sound warnings against all that is proposed, but their feeble activity makes not the slightest impression on the collective English

The citizens and taxpayers of that country have accepted public owner-ship and have installed it as a fixed institution. They act and speak as if they have forgotten that any other sys-tem ever existed. They do not consider new projects as experiments, but as investments. The few privately owned street railways are looked on as curlostites.

The intelligent observer of this development is almost bewildered by the paradox which it presents. The English Individual—as an individual—is the most conservative in the world. He is devotedly wedded to that which was. He venerates that which is old. An-tiquity is a standard of value. He reveres that which an American scorns as obsolete and scoffs at innovations of demonstrated utility. He prefers a resdence guiltiess of plumbing and an of-fice building without an elevator or any of the modern conveniences. Be-ship for the simple reason that private cause his ancestors did not know how to heat a building in winter or ventilate it in summer he is content to suffer from the inelemencies of both sensons.

Politically and economically all of his teachers were of the individualistic school. In fact, there was no other school in Great Britain. Germany was forced to listen to the radical theories of Karl Marx and Ferdinand La Saile. France was aghated by the teachings of St. Simon, Louis Blane and others more or less visionary, who contended for the supremacy of collective over individual offert. But the vertices of dividual effort. But the writings of such men made no impress in England against the sober logic of Adam Smith, John Stuart Mill and more recently Herbert Spencer. All of these and Herbert Spencer. All of these and scores of lesser dogmatists treated the theory of public ownership with eru-ite contempt or else ignored it as not corthy of attack.

How comes it that from such a soll and in such an atmosphere the state and the city have set houselves up as the superior of the private owners of wast enterprises? How comes it that the conservative and unhanginative Englishman has boldly initiated a programme which would stagger the adaptable French and confound the practical and progressive German?

In no nation in Christendom has in dividual effort made so lamentable a fathre as in Great Britain. I do not mean a failure in a dividend paying sense, but a failure to keep anywhere near abreast of the mechanical, inventive and engineering progress of the age. The rapid development of maage. The rapid development of ma-chinery and of processes had the same effect in England as elsewhere—viz, the formation of large corporations, some of which secured monopolistic control in various fields. Gas plants, water-works and street railways were thus constructed and operated. At the in-ception of these enterprises there was no demand for public ownership. It was not until traveled Englishmen de-clared that such properties were fur clared that such properties were far below the standard of efficiency and economy established in other countries that there was a clamor for improved service and reduced rates.

Then it was that the inertia of the Eaglish and Scottish capitalists revealed itself. These placid men could see no reason why they should change. They smiled at the assertion that there was anything to learn from what had developed in the United States and in other countries which had a manta for tearing down old things and erecting new ones in their places. George Fran-cis Train had landed in England and performed the miracle of Introducing borse cars, or "trainways," as they term them. Was it not enough to adopt one American device without at-tempting to follow the hazardous ex-periments of cable cars and electrical traction? They would not listen to any demand for modern mathems. demand for modern methods.

In taking this attitude they were in exact accord with other property owners whose money was invested in enterprises not so public in their nature. The landlord whose buildings were devoted to offices did not tear them down and roomes and not tear them down and erect new ones when reminded that New York, Chicago and scores of American cities had revolutionized that type of architecture. The dens off Fleet street and the Straud were good enough for Dombey & Son, and the squalid quarters of the Cheshire Chesse served to meet the demands of Cheese served to meet the demands of Samuel Johnson and Oliver Goldsmith.
Why tear them down in initiation of a nation which was woefully lacking in antiquities and traditions? Some of the hotels yielded to a popular demand the notes yieled to a popular demand for elevators, so they put them in and called them "lifts," but absolutely re-fused to consider any such wild eyed scheme as a system of plumbing which would provide hot and cold water in rooms occupied by their guests. Nor is there a hotel in Great Britain which I

there a note in Great Britain which there seen or heard of that has adopted this "modern improvement."

With these and a thousand other examples to fortify his course, it is small wonder that the English Investor in wonder that the Enginsh investor in street railways, gas plants and similar quast public enterprises declined to yield to the growing demand for bet-ter service. He was equally deaf to the representatives of private manufacturers who urged that by the introduction ors who arged that by the introduction of electricity and other "innovations" an increased efficiency could be obtained which would show in increased dividends. He would not listen to a word of it. That which had been good enough for his father was good enough

Such was the attitude of the private public ownership movement had its birth, and such is his attitude at the present moment. He does not believe in any novelty not of his own inven-tion, and he has neither the taste nor the talent for invention. He therefore stood still, and the public ran over him. I am unable to find any record that the English capitalist offered any decided opposition to this tragedy. Certainly he did not become excited over It. That would not have been in good form. He simply walted and watched the proces sion pass. Public ownership became a recognized institution without his same capitalists refused to properly manage reprivate monopolles. There was no sentiment about R. There was no appeal to high economic ideals. There was no accedente discussion. It did not even form a partisan issue and was rarely a startly and accedented the sentiment of the sentiment o plank in a local platform.

And despite all this there has been accomplished one of the most tremendous industrial and economic revolutions since the birth of modern civili-

How the Six Hundred Rode Into the Java of Death.

Sergeant Mycanley, who died on Jan. 8, gave this account of Dalakhava; On the morning of Balakhava I was in a tent with eight comrades, and only two of them returned at night. I rode through the charge on the left file but tone, the outside man being called Herbert. We had not gone far before Herbert was killed by a cannon ball. A moment or two after my right hand man had his head taken elean off by a round shot. His trunk kept upright on the horse for several yards and then fell over near me. Men and horses now began to full yery fast, and we galloped. in a tent with eight comrades, and only began to fall very fast, and we galloped began to the very last, and we gamped as hard as ever we could.

We got among the guns at last, and it was a proud moment for us the feeling was short lived. We fully ex-pected to be supported, but when the smoke cleared we discovered that what we took for British troops were in re-ality Russian cavalry. They came for us in a perfect cloud, and we fueed about and rushed right into them. There was an awful clash of swords and almost before we could realize it we had cut right through them. This opened a passage for the remainder of the brigade and was the only real bit of fighting we had. The other was only

HE CONSULTED BACON.

Andrew Jackson Fought His Duel With Colonel Avery. It was Andrew Jackson's habit to carry in his saddlebags when he at-tended court a copy of "Bacon's Abridgment" and to make frequent appeals to it in his cases. This precious book was always carefully done up in coarse brown paper, and the unwrap-ping of the volume was a very solemn function as performed by Jackson, who was then only twenty one years old. Colonel Avery during the trial which preceded the duel between himself and Jackson procured a piece of bacon the size of the book, and while Jackson was addressing the court he slipped out the volume from its wrapping and sub stituted the bit of pork. At length Jackson had occasion to appeal to Lord Bacon. While still talking he raised the bearskin flap of his saddlebags, drew out the brown paper package, carefully untied the string, unfolded the paper with decorous gravity and then, without looking at what he held in his hand, exclaimed triumphantly, then, without looking at what he held in his hand, exclaimed triumphantly "We will now see what Bacon says!" What wonder that the flery young lawyer blazed with anger, while the conriroom rang with laughter at his expense and that he afterward challenged Colonel Avery.—Harper's, the Home. We remember as children that in riding through the country we had a dread of high hills. How often we saw far ahead of us on the road a formidable looking hill. How high and rough and step it looked, and how we feared it? How hard it would be for the horse to carry us up such a hill?

We were sure he would slip and fall and maybe upset the carriage, and so, with the greatest apprehension, we would approach the dreadful hill. But would approach the deciding in the Bulk how surprised we were as we came nearer to flud the hill receding, growing flatter and really not a hill at all when we reached the point that seemed so high and eraggy and dangerous?

So it is with many of life's perplexi-ties. How darkly they loom up before us! What a black pail they spread around us? But when we get close up to them they have vanished entirely. We spoil so much of life in fear and foreloading. We let slip the beautiful moments that are ours and spoil them by dreading the moments of the future with which we have nothing to do. ## Banking by mail is now an accomplished fact, in successful operation in many cities.

The Old Colony Trust Company has adopted a system which makes it easy for its out-of-town depositors to open accounts and transact business by mail. Deposits sent by mail may be in the form of money orders or checks, and they are acknowledged the day they are received. It is not necessary to send the pass book with deposits, or to be balanced, as, on request, statements are mailed showing the balance on the last day of each month, and the cancelled checks are returned at the same time. This system is a great convenience to those who come to Boston infrequently, and to those whose business makes it difficult for them to reach a bank during banking hours.

Residents of towns surrounding Boston, who may be interested in this method of banking, are invited to send for a pamphlet more fully describing it and illustrating the Temple Place office in the shopping district.

HOMER STREET TRACKS.

At 8 o'clock a hearing was announced upon the proposed revocation of location of the Newton, & Boston St. Rwy Co in Homer st.

Ex-alderman Henry Baily said that this matter had been so thoroughly discussed that there was nothing nev to be said. After referring to the petition of the First Church, he said that no people engaged in the worship of God should be disturbed unless there was a great public necessity therefor He called attention to the fact that even with the track removed the residents of this street would still be better served in street railway matters than a large part of the entire city. In the matter of street construction, Mr. Baily said that Homer st was in such a condition that if the tracks were allowed to remain a large place the railway was put forward as amount of money must be spent on it an inducement and he not only bought this year. Mr. Baily said he under-stood that the Company was not only which went with it. The track is a willing to do all the law required them fixture or the company would not have to do, but were also willing to contribute toward the total expense. It is not necessary that the amount of this contribution should be made public, as it was not the taxpayers money that was being used. If the log for accommodations for street amount offered is acceptable to the aldermen, it is all that is necessary, and there is no need of hanging up criticized the petition in favor saying a matter of this kind on such a point.

All these Mr. Baily urged, are subor-like a flock of sheep and if they had dinate questions to the main fact of what the public convenience and necessity require in this case. Mr. business. Mr. John S. Alley. It is much more much safer for the cars to use Com-monwealth ave. I do not question the fact that within one year after the tracks are removed from Homer st the residents there would refuse to have them replaced.

Mr. E. H. Ferry. I have used Homer street and have met but few cars and have noticed but little travel on the cars I have seen. There is no public convenience served by these tracks. The street is na rrow at present but the grade is easy.

President Claffin in reply to a question said he believed the tracks were laid in 1895.

Mr. George M. Butler presented a petition signed by 62 residents of Homer st and vicinity remonstrating against the removal of tracks.

He said that this petition represented a property valuation of $600,000. The points he made in favor of removal were the triple transfers to reach the north side of the city the loss of patronage to the Company: and unsafe and unlighted condition of the cross streets between Home r st and Commonwealth ave., the fact that the Episcopal church does not petition for removal, and that Homer st was not particularly desirable for driving purposes.

The report was received and the amendment considered.

Alderman Webster, I offer this mendment not because I am opposed to this additional track, but because it has been an unwritten law in this city that there should be no double tracks in streets less than 70 feet in width. The city should not be put to one dollar's expense by reason of this track. Washington st has go to be widened, it is a main thorough fare and its present width is barely sufficient for travel, it will be still worse with two tracks and additional tion, 800 feet long and not a turnout.

Alderman Bishop presented an order evocating the location of tracks of tne Newton & Boston St. Rwy Co in Homer st. In reply to a question of Alderman Bosson, Pres. Claflin stated that if the tracks were removed his Company would run its cars by way of Commonwealth ave.

Alderman Webster. We do no snow what this is going to cost the city before we are through with it. The macadamizing of Homer st is said to cost $3000 but we do not know what it is going to cost to fix up these side streets with sidewalks and street lights.

The order was then referred to the Committee on Public Works to investigate this matter and to report at the next meeting, by a vote of 11 to 8.

BENEATH THE GILDED DOME.

avs observes current events in his invocations at the opening of the session of the Upper Branch, and when the Senate was called to order last Thursday, Evacuation Day, Dr. Horton delivered the following patriotic appeal:

"Gracious God, on this day of commemoration, we remember the heroes of old who laid the foundations of this government. We would recal their services and virtues that may attain some portion of their inspiring power. We thank thee for the spirit of liberty that flamed through them and was so grandly displayed. Their deeds shine like stars in a night of oppression. Perpetuate, we pray Thee, the love of freedom and the spirit of independence down to the latest generation. Unite our country-men today for liberty to our American spirit which includes noble patriotism and greatest liberty of citizenship, and the Kingdom of Christ shall all the more come because we do some thing to bring it."

The prayers of Dr. Horton are enhanced in value and interest because they are always impromptu and force themselves, by their lofty unction, from the heart of the petitioner to the heart of the hearer. It is hardly too much to expect that the quality of legislation in the Senate Chamber must be exalted, in a degree at least, by the earnestness, devotion and lofty sentiments that are expressed at the opening of each session.

Among the bright things that have take place during the session was the incident which occurred last week during the debate upon the suggestion of Governor Douglas recommending an Industrial Commission. Representative Cushman of Somerville, in supporting the Committee report that no legislation was necessary, held up to the view of the House one of the pictorial posters used in the campaign last fall, exhibiting Governor Douglas at different stages in his career, from the small beginning to the present time, when he has a cor-poration capitalized at $2,000,000, and which claims its output has been $31,000,000 and that for ten years its product has increased more than $1,000,000 a year. "Does that suggest that we need an Industrial Commission?" cried Mr. Cushman. It was one of the best speeches of the session, and made a decided sensation in the House. Allen of Brockton, Schofield of Ipswich and others, undertook to turn the tide, but the House caught the idea, and when the House catches an idea, the contagion runs like wild fire. Governor Douglas' Industrial Commission resembles the Arab's tent.

The Bill for the abolition of capital punishment has been reported adversely by the Committee on Judiciary, with four dissenters; Sen-Judiciary, with four dissenters; Senators Clark and Callendar and Nepresentatives Grady of Boston and Evans of Everett. If the legislature agrees with the Committee, the murderer will have to sit in the electric chair, if he lives to get there.

The Bill to change the legal rate of interest on personal loans so that it shall not exceed ten per cent, per annum has been ordered to a third readnum has been ordered to a third read-ing in the House. Now when that becomes a law, just see how Shylock will get around it. It takes a pretty swift law to get ahead of the money lender. The modern Portia would find a tougher problem than the one "nominated in the Bond," if she should get after a modern money lender. It is a pretty deep gulf over which hangs the sign "no money

It was rather a suggestive circumstance the other day as the Committee was hearing the Smoke Nuisance Bill to observe four channeys within sight of the State House belching forth clouds of black smoke and fine particles of soot falling upon the linen of the members of the Committee and even penetrating the nostrils of those who were present in remonstrance.

The four-headed matter now being heard by the Street Railway Committee is one of the most interesting propositions before the legislature. Four projected street railways between Boston and Providence in these times of consolidation, receiverships, leasing and a general in-the-air condition would seem to suggest a holding up attitude on the part of the legislature. No one could have attended the hearing without being convinced that must have been a cat somewhere in the bake-shop.

The short lobsters are not all in the legislature; some are in the sea, and there is a bill now pending to open the markets for the sale of imported short lobsters. It would seem as though there were enough lobsters, of of intelligence within the borders of the Commonwealth, without opening the markets to foreign productions.

A rather suggestive observation is with paper pattern that which discloses the fact that out HICK'S ALMANAC for 1905

Quacre:—While walking down Centre Street last Thursday night about half past seven o'clock I slipped on some ice on the concrete sidewalk, and was badly hurt. It was a clear cold night and I was walking carefully. The dark concrete makes it next to impossible to see the ice unless the light from some street light strikes it. The ice was not sanded. The lawn adjoining the place where I fell slopes down to the sidewalk and the ice was formed from water from the melting snow which runs across the sidewalk. Please tell me if I have any right to sue. J. F. W.

Answer. 1. You cannot recover

Answer, 1. You cannot recover against the City of Newton, if the sidewalk was reasonably safe and convenient for travel, but for the presence of the ice. Municipalities formerly were liable in cases like this but their liability was cancelled by the Legislature in 1896.

2. You cannot recover against the owner of the adjoining land. There seems to have been no liability at common law on the part of the abut-ter to keep his sidewalk reasonably safe and convenient for travel. From early times this duty has been im-posed upon towns and cities by statute and such is the law today. In 1859 it was held that the city alone was liable for injuries resulting from the presence of ice and snow from natural causes upon the sidewalk. It was said that the abutter was under no obligation to keep the sidewalk in repair, that the duty belonged to the city alone and that even an ordinance requiring him to remove the ice and snow gave no right of action to any person injured because of his failure so to do. In Newton the city ordnance requires the abutters to remove only snow from the sidewalk. But the abutter has been held liable where snow and ice has collected on his sidevalk either because he has cast it there or because something has been glory. The production will remain at done or left undone upon his premises. For instance he has been held liable where he allowed a broken sidewalk to remain unrepaired. Again where he maintained a waterspout which discharged eitner directly upon the sidewalk or into a gutter which ran across the walk, he has been held for damage to one injured by ice the gutter. This was on the ground that he was maintaining a nuisance. But in your case the abutter has done nothing to cast the water upon the sidewalk, his sole fault being that he has not prevented the forces of nature from depositing the water where it was likely to do harm. As the Court has said in one of its opnions this is one of the "usual effects of our climate." Therefore you have no redress for your injury. redress for your injury.

Quaere:—A and B, are partners in business. By the partnership articles A directs that at his death B, shall continue the business for ten years, paying a certain per centage of the profit to A's wife, and that after the ten years B, shall own the business entirely. A dies and leaves a will in which he doesn't mention the partnership articles, and in which he provides that his wife may make any agreement she sees fit with the surviving partner in regard to carrying on the business. Is the wife of A, bound by the partnership Articles? K. B.

Answer. Yes. By the partnership articles A's assets invested in the partnership at his death are bound to continue there, if B, so desires, B's contractual rights in the matter cannot be effected by the provisions of A's will.

They had been bidden to expect something on a magnificent scale, but it is doubtful whether they anticipated the charming stage pictures awaiting them. When the curtain ran up there was an involuntary cry throughout the house of "How Beautiful," and then came a round of cheering again and again renewed. But apart from its spectacular effects, "The Cingalee" may be voted one of the most dies. ### LADIES MINSTRELS.

The parish house of the Universalist church. Newtonville, was taxed to its utmost capacity Thursday and Fri-day evenings of last week the occasion being a ladies minstrel and vaudeville show given under the auspices of the Ladies Sewing Circle and under the direction of Mrs. J. L. Atwood. At 8 o'clock the curtain rose on a hewildering picture of brunette beauty, the circle numbering 18 ladies with Mrs. Robert C. Bridgham, in a handsome evening gown and large picture hat as the interlocutor. The circle was composed of Mesdames Arthur Jones, A. D. Cady, C. Frank Hunting, Elden Jennison, Fletcher Robie, John Langdon Sibley, Charles Shirley, Joseph Earle, Joseph L. At-wood, William F. Kimball and the Misses Stella M. Carter, Edith B. Park, Bessie Hartshorne and Mary Wells. Master John E. Cox and Miss Eleanor Cutting were the little picanninies. The tambos were Mrs. Paul Revere Knight and Mrs. Chester Morton and the bones Mrs. Charles Theo dore Cutting and Miss Marion Tilton. To these four ladies in their brilliant dresses made somewhat after the style of the male minstrel costume, was given the larger share of the work and stories, conundrums, anecdotes and roasts on local citizens were fired at each other, the interlocutor and the auudience in rapid succession. "Coon" songs were plentiful and a quartette consisting of Meadames Sibley, Jones, Bridgham and Miss Wells gave pleasing vocal selections. The entertainment was concluded with an olio consisting of harmonica solos by Mr. G. Henry Weston; readings by Miss Marie Bartlett; whistling solos by Miss Marion Smith, monologues by Mr. Hubert W. Pierce and xylophone solos by Mr. Frank Russell. Mrs. J. Frank Renfrew made a most acceptable accompanist for the musica, portion of the program. A numbe of young ladies in white with the head covering of the southern darky were the ushers. A satisfactory sum was realized which will be used to further the work of the circle.

Political Notes.

Newtonville, Mass, March 20, 1905. Dear Mr. Hatfield:

My name has been suggested by my friends for one of the Republican nominations for representative from this city in the event of a vacancy oc-curring next Fall. The duties of the office would be interesting and pleas-ant and the service of Newton in any capacity is an honor. There are how-ever other gentlemen who desire this honor and if I persist in my candidacy a content seems inevitable. Whether my chances in such a contest would be good or bad is immaterial for if I telt that the other candidates were unworthy or that while personally worthy they stood for false principles I should, as a matter of duty, fight to a finish. But no such state of affairs exists and under the actual circumstances a contest would be an unseemly scramble, hurtful to the city, the party and the candidates.

I therefore beg to withdraw my name from further consideration and take this method of so doing, as also of thanking those who have been so kind as to offer me their support. If it seems desirable to you, this letter may be made public.

Yours very truly, Geo. Royal Pulsifer.

Charles E. Hatfield, Esq., Chairman, Republican City Com-301, Barristers Hall, Boston.

How British Cities Manage Public Utilities

London Is the Greatest Landlord In the World.
"The Great Housing Act"

By FREDERICK UPHAM ADAMS

[Copyright, 1904, by Frederick Upham Adams.]

ORE than 200 cities in Great Britain own and operate wa-terworks. There are 100 municipally owned gas plants and more than that number of public electric lighting plants. Every large ways, the total being considerably in excess of the hundred mark. Two hundred and fifty cities own their markets, 350 cities maintain baths and wash houses, and an equal number own burial grounds. Forty-three cities own piers, docks and quays. There is invested in all of these productive enterprises a sum of money for excess or will increase this figure beyond the billion mark. These rough statistics give but an inadequate idea of the scope and extent of the movement. All of this has been accomplished in less than thirty years and most of it in the last

In addition to having taken measures assuring the acquisition of all public utilities, London is the greatest landlord in the world. It has already erected tenements, lodgings and cottages which shelter 25,000 persons, who regularly This is only the beginning. Plans have been adopted, funds raised and work is in progress on buildings which will provide for 75,000 more of the home seeking class of the metropolis. These investments represent an expenditure

There are only thirty-eight cities in the United States with a population larger than that which will dwell in the houses owned by the city of London and under the control of its county council. Its tenants will number more than reside in such populous and pro-gressive cities as Albany, Lowell, Portland, Atlanta, Richmond, Nashville, Hartford, Wilmington, Des Moines and New Bedford.

"The great housing act," as it is called, was passed by parliament in 1800, a year after the formation of the London county council. No such radical piece of legislation was ever seriously considered by a lawmaking body in the United States. It had its origin in the fact that the landlord class was deaf to public opinion. There were more than a million people denied the oppor-tunity of renting decent places of

In this emergency parliament took drastic action. It clothed the London county council and similar bodies in the larger cities with powers they have not hesitated to use. The housing bill not hesitated to use. The housing bill provides three methods of attack. Part I places upon the London coun-ty council the duty of preparing and carrying into effect (after sanction by the secretary of state and parliament) schemes for the improvement of insan-itary areas which are of such a size as to be of general importance to the whole county. In any such scheme it whole county. In any such scheme it is essential that new dwellings shall be provided on the area dealt with for at least half the persons displaced. Part 2 enables the borough councils to take proceedings before a magistrate for the closing and demolition of single houses which are unit for hu-man habitation. It also enables the borough councils and the county council, either in conjunction or otherwise, to undertake schemes which are too small to be of importance to the whole county. The borough councils also have power to purchase and destroy build-ings which prevent the proper ventilation of adjacent buildings.

Part 3 is even more sweeping and revolutionary in its character. It enmbles the county council to purchase by agreement or with the consent of the secretary of state and parliament, by compulsion, houses for "the accommodation of persons of the working class

In order that county councils should have unlimited scope in solving the housing problem it was enacted that they should have the right to "purchase or acquire hand outside the areas of their jurisdiction" for the purareas of their jurisdiction, for the pur-pose of creeting dwellings for the work-ing classes. This step was urged and adopted for the reason that speculators were acquiring and holding large tracts in the suburban districts best fitted for an extension of municipal housing schemes. The bill provided for com-pulsory sales, the price to be fixed by competent and disinterested appraise-ment in the event that the negotiating parties failed to reach an agreement.

Still the agitators for better housing ere not satisfied. They complained that the original bill was defective by reason of the fact that the London county council was debarred from demolishing insanitary areas consisting of less than twenty houses. It frequently developed that one or more houses good condition would be surrounded in good condition would be surrounded by a number of objectionable ones. A year ago parliament constituted struc-tures housing "thirty persons as an area of disturbance" instead of twenty houses. This amendment is re-enforced by power to widen old streets or to cut new ones, with the right to purchase all abutting property and rebuild thereon.

Inistruct as there is absolutely no limit to the borrowing power of the London county council for the purpose of executing reproductive enterprises, it is difficult to fix the possible bounds of its operations. It has not the slight-est difficulty in floating enormous bond issues and is authorized to make them redcemable at the end of eighty year periods. A recent issue of $10,000,000 of 3 per cent bonds sold for $9,400,000. The taxpayers are not disturbed, since there is no charge against the rates. The buildings thus far creeted show a bandsome profit. A few of the great namesome pront. A rew of the great private landlords are disposed to fear the threatened competition and to re-sent the rigid supervision exercised by the housing committee, but despite their yest wealth and high standing they do not seem to have an influence much disproportionate to their num surrounding boroughs. Each of these has a mayor and a board of councilors and aldermen, and all are empowered under the housing act to engage in such enterprises, subject to the general supervision of the London county coun ell. Although it is only three years since the boroughs have had this right, an enormous amount of work has been accomplished. Battersea has erected dwellings for 1.500 of its population. At an expense of $250,000 Bermondsey has erected four blocks of model dwell ings for 980 persons. Camberwell has provided accommodations for 1,242 persons at an expense of about $500,000.

The most extensive of the boroug! schemes is that undertaken by Shore ditch, which is pushing work on three large estates which its council has pur-chased or condemned. For this work there has been appropriated more than $1,500,000. Houses and cottages are be-$1,500,000. Houses and cottages are being crected for fully 6,000 persons. The borough supplies electric light to its tenants. The rate for a two room fat is 16 cents a week and for three rooms 20 cents a week, with larger apartments in proportion. The buildings already completed house 2,000 persons, who pay from $1.50 to $3 a week for these flats. The borough derives a profit both from its rents and its electrical condenses.

The boroughs combined have expend ed or appropriated nearly $4,000,000 and are or will accommodate more than 13,000 of their inhabitants. The map of greater London is honeycombed with these municipal dwellings, and from all indications the work has scarcely begun.

But the activity of the boroughs is insignificant compared with that of the all powerful and aggressive London county council. By far the largest housing scheme ever undertaken by a private or public corporation is that which is in progress in Tottenham, a suburb six miles from the heart of London. There the London county council is creating a new town which will have a population of 40,000. After prolonged negotiations the council pur-chased from private holders a tract of 225 acres at a price of $2,000 an acre. Through it runs the river Moselle, and in every respect the location is a de-lightful one. In the center there is re-served a space for stores and public buildings, including a flue library donated by Mr. Passmore Edwards. From this center streets and boulevards will radiate in all directions. It courts, parks and open sections called

A Grewsome Foreshadowin

A grewsome foreshadowing, of which the subject was himself the projector, is referred to by Dickens in a letter from Boston to Lord Lytton. At a dinner party given by Dr. Webster, pro-fessor of chemistry at Harvard, while the wine was going its rounds, the host in a whimsical humor ordered the lights to be extinguished and a bowl of burning inducrals to be brought in to afford the company the novel entertain ment of seeing how ghastly they look-ed by its light. Euch guest was looking horror stricken at his neighbor when Webster was seen bending over the phosphorescent bowl with a rope round his neck, simulating with ghastly real-ter the sectors of a boundary. his needs, annuating with guasty real-ism the aspect of a hanged man. With-in a year of this weird fooling the un-happy wretch had the hangman's noose in deadly earnest round his neck for murder.

A REVIVAL OF RELIGION.

Substance of a recent sermon preached at Channing church by the Rev. Adelbert Lathrop Hudson.

The mere fact of a revival of religion has a psychological significance which invites thoughtful consideraligion as to make a reawakening necessary. There is no hint of any "revival of religion" in the early history of New England. The feelstrong and continuous that there was no room for such a movement.

All of these influences combined, toward the close of the century, to produce a growing indifference to the work of the churches, and to the claims of religion upon the individual life. But in the very nature of things such a reaction could not be permanent. The liberal protest, in working out its own destiny, met also the scientific protest, by developing a larger and nobler thought of God, and a more rational interpretation of Mr. Terry.

SOME STRAIGHT GOODS ON PURE ENGLISH

Irreverent and Slangy Comment on Sonator Penrose's Bill For the Preservation of Our Language.

The Indianapolis News makes the following irreverent comment on the announcement that Sciniter Perrose of Pennsylvania has introduced a bill for the preservation of the English language. "This is a sure hot one right off the but. The general impression, at least on our beat, was that when it came to handling out the Erglish language in a manner that was dead right we were pretty fly guys. Not only the preservation, but the ampliferation of the English language has always the preservation, but the ampirement of the English language has always been the long suit of the American people, and no matter how fast new bunches of it were sprung, we are always dead next in a minute. What the ways dead next in a minute. What the Senator's game is we can't see from here, but we can give him a quiet tip that we're for the English bingmage from soda to hock, and that if we can give him a lift at this graft be won't find any of us with cold feet. That is, of course, if it's a straight deal that he really wants to do the right thing by the lingo that we are all so proud of. But if it's anything else he wants to keep his eye poeled. We've a hunch that any man who tries to monkey with our mother tongue for political purposes is going to get in the neck all he has got coming to him. We of Indiana, where, perhaps, in politics and diana, where, perhaps, in politics literature, we use as much English language per capita as in any other neck of woods in the country, certainly won't stand for anything that gives the language the heavy end of the log. If there is anything we are touchy about it is our English, and whether it is being used for the lot air of a po-litical gabfast, or the perfectly lovely resolutions of the Local Council of Women, we want it kept straight and used without any marks on the deck, and it will never lack for a gang of husky guys to see that it doesn't get the worst of it. Us for English, pure and undefiled and oodles of it."

WISE WORDS.

A thing of duty is a bore forever .-

Town Topics.
You cannot touch men as long as you think of them as masses.

The poor we have always with us. but most of us manage to keep them at a distance.

There's something wrong about man's picty when it provokes others to profanity.

I beg of you to take courage: the brave soul can mend even disaster .-Catherine of Russia. Fashion is only the attempt to realize art in living forms and social intercourse.-O. W. Holmes. Time is the great comforter of grief. but the agency by which it works is exhaustion.-L. E. Landon.

It is from the remembrance of joys we have lost that the arrows of af-fliction are pointed.-Mackenzie.

There are no greater wretches in the world than many of those whom people in general take to be happy .-

Contentment comes neither by culture nor by wishing; it is a reconcilia-tion with one's lot, growing out of an inward superiority to our surround-ings,-J. K. McLeau.

When men do anything for God, the very least thing, they never know where it will end, nor what amount of work it will do for him. Love's se-cret, therefore, is to be always doing things for God, and not to mind be-cause they are very little ones.—F. W.

Faber. The man who finds what sort of work he is fitted for, and who, by dint of will, good luck and a combination of various causes, manages to be effof various entaises, intanges to be em-ployed upon the work he is fitted for, and, when he is so employed upon it, does it conscientiously and with pleas-ing because he can do it well, that man is an artist.—William Morris.

Last of Dr. Holmes' Class.

With the death at Newport the other day of the venerable Dr. Cunning-ham, at the age of ninety-five, the records of the famous class of Harvard, 29, were closed. Though this class had in it an unusual number of men who afterward became eminent various walks of life, it was the session of Oliver Wendell Holmes which gave it its greatest fame and shed upon it its greatest lustre. It was the annual reunions of this class which inspired in Dr. Holmes some which inspired in Dr. Itolines some of his best poetry, and though with that death of Dr. Cumulagham the last of those he sang of follows the singer to the realm of shades, the song still lives to delight our own and future generations. The class itself is worthy to be remembered, not so much for the number of great names borne on its rolls as for the fact that at its banquets were delivered for the first time no less than forty-four of Dr. Holmes' poems. -New York Press

Famishing Crows Kill Pige.

Hungry crows, unable to find food elsewhere, killed and partly devoured eighteen pigs belonging to Julius Daub mann, a farmer, near Orston, Camden County.
The birds had hung around the place for several days, and became such a nuisance Daubmann found it necessary to use his gun. Yesterday one of Daubmann's assistants was awakened by the din of the crows and saw the barnyard full of them. He groused Daubmann and the other men, and structure in the latest properties of the control of the cont ter firing into the crows eighteen of the pigs were found to have been killed, all having their eyes pecked out. -Philadelphia Record. were found to have

The April number of Pearson's Magazine contains nine special articles, besides eight short stories, the leading article being a pro-tusely illustrated one, "The Church of the Holy Sepulcher." "Fighting of the rate bill now pending in con gress. The "Republic vs. the Banking Syndicates," by Frank Putnam, "The Masters of Our Railways," by Edward D. Tittmann, railroad expert of the New York Times. "What Causes Railway Wrecks," by C. H. Causes Railway Wrecks," by C. H. Allison, of the Illinois Central Railroad. Mr. Each urgently advises railway managers to accept federal control of rates, lest federal ownership prove to be the only alternativeand Mr. Each does not desire federal ownership. Mr. Putnam argues that the railways are public highways that should be open to all comers on precisely equal terms, and declares his belief that unjust and illegal dis-criminations will continue as long as these public highways remain in private hands. Mr. Tittmann marshals data to support Mr. Esch's assertion that five or six banking syndicates own most of the railways in this country, and control the remainder. Mr. Tittmann presents portraits eight of the railway kings of the United States. Mr. Allison makes an artful special plea in extenuation of the wholesale slaughter of passengers. employees and trespassers on American railways, charging most of the blame against railway labor unions. This contention is vigorously combatted by Mr. Putnam. The literary and pictorial features of the number are up to its usual high standard.

Among the contributors are Charles Warren Stoddard, Joe Mitchell Chapple, Katherine Lee Bates, Governor Charles Aycock of North Carolina, Youe Noguchi, Miriam Sheffey, James Ball Naylor, Anna McClure Sholl; J. F. Conrad, the new Iowa humorist, and Mabel Percy Haskell.

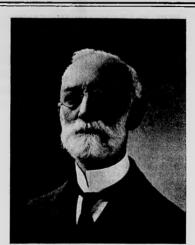

McClure's for April tempts extrava gant praise. Articles of world wide scope, sound, pertinent, going deeply into great affairs fairly teem in its pages, crowding close with a goodly list of bright, diverting fiction. They go into many fields of human activi ties, and there is equal diversity among the stories. It is a number that carries breathless interest. How the greatest American fortune grew by automatic process from $2,000,000 to half a billion within a century is told by Burton J. Hendrick in "The Astor Fortune." Lincoln Steffens has turned his attention to New Jersey, there to find the biggest theme he has yet encountered. This state is selling out the rest of us for money She has become a financial pirate's haven. Her "Letters of Marque" are the legal license of the trusts. In this, the hatchery of all special privleges, has been fostered all that is in opposition to a "square deal." "New Jersey: A Traitor State' tells a story that every citizen who cares for his country, his state, or his city should "What Ails Russia" by Perceval Gibbon, is a vivid and powerful pen-picture of the men who have brought Russia to her present extremity. And then there is a remarkable human document, Dr. Wilfred T. Grenfell's story of his work among Grenfell's story of his work among the fisher-folk of the bleak northern coasts. A new series, the "Great Masters of Literature," begins in this number with "Cervantes." George Edward Woodberry, until recently Professor of Comparative Literature at Columbia, will deal in these papers with the great great in the great countries. with those great writers who inter-pret the common heart and reflect the general life of mankind, "The Golden Flood," Edwin Lefevre's Wall street story, is concluded with an astonishing solution of the mysterious source of the gold that has played havoc with high finance. "In Regard to Josephine" is another of Mary Stewart Cutting's "Little Stories of Courtship." "A Social Event," by Florence Tinsley Cox, is a delightful story of a very little girl, to which Jessie Willcox Smith contributes a drawing in color. There are besides: "A Corner-Stone Calf," by Ceylon E. Hollingsworth, a merry tale of a pair of small boys; "Speedaway," Richard Washburn Childs love story of a factory town; and "The Faithful Brady," a tragedy of a man and his

One of the most stirring accounts of automobile experiences appears in this number, under the title "The Automobile Roughing It." "The Music Master and David War"." "The Self Supporting Home," the base-ball article "The Mon on Whom the Championships Depend," and Augusus Lerrok's final installment of "How a Big Newspaper" is Conducted" complete the list of "Specials." In giving his answer to such questions the writer proposes, today, to take up first hands containing less than four trumps.

Whatever opinion he may have held during his earlier experimental trials of "short" trump pennings, the conclusions reached have led to the formulation of the following rule:

Short trump leads are warranted from hands containing an established suit, one sure, or dependable reentry and fair blocking support in a second suit.

The "established suit" may not be established in the strictest sense of the term. But such suits as ace, king queen and two or more low cards; ace, king, knave and two or three low, or ace, king and four or more low; in other words, suits, headed by two or more winning cards of any high cards that may be out against the holder of the suit, are considered sufficient to warrant the risk incurred by the winning cards of any high cards that may be out against the holder of the suit, are considered sufficient to warrant the risk incurred by the winning cards of any high cards that may be out against the holder of the suit, are considered sufficient to warrant the risk incurred by the winning cards of any high cards that may be out against the holding as at whole might be so constituted that a tleast one opponent, South, was a fair example of many which have come under the writer's meant an ace, or king and queen in combination. or the holding as whole might be so constituted that a three-card combination—king, knave, low for example—might be deepen and the content of the

UNITARIAN CLUB.

The monthly meeting of the Unita-ian Club was held last Friday evening in the Channing church parlors a nominating committee was appointed to bring in a list of officers at the annual meeting in April. Rev. James Eells, pastor of the First Church, Boston, was the special guest of the club and spoke on "The Ideal Life." He urged everyone to get all that was He urged everyone to get all that was possible out of life, its highest realism whether it be in art, music, the drama or in some humble way. The men of the coast guard, the firemen and the sailor, the obscure and un-known men are often the greatest heroes, fighting for a principle. The speaker advocated keeping life whole some and sweet and while some allow the physical and material side to dom inate it is best for the spiritual to be the stronger characteristic. This is illustrated by the so-called dualism of Persia the conflict between light and darkness, the good and bad; these Persian idealists are like the prophets of old the spirit being the most prom inent in their creed. The April meeting will be the annual Ladies' night when it is expected that Attorney General Herbert Parker will be the

ENTERTAINMENT CLUB

The Entertainment Club is certainly making rapid strides toward the professional stage of its career as was amply demonstarted by the production of E. C. Lankester's three act farcical comedy "The Guy'nor" in Channing church parlors last Tuesday evening. Notwithstanding the storm the rooms were well filled with an audience composed of people from the Newtons, Boston, Brookline and surrounding towns. A more finished performance has seldom been seen on an amateur stage, no prompting was necessary, the character parts were well balanced and with excellent make ups each gave the desired effect. A part of the scenery was painted for the play and added much to the stage setting. The committee in charge was Messrs Bancrott L. Goodwin, was Messrs Bancroft I Goodwin, chairman; W. C. Adams, F. W. ## LETTER TO A. J. BLANCHARD,

Dear Sir: A big mill-owner, Spartausburg, S C, wanted 5,000 gallors of paint, and bought by price; paid 5 cents less than ours; got a "lead-and-zinc" paint but the lead was sulphate of lead, not carbonate. Sulphate costs about half; and covers about half.

That paint was adulterated about six times as much as the 5 cents paid for. He "faved" 5 cents and it cost him 30.

Oh no; it cost him more than that; we forgot the labor. Can't work it out exactly; don't know how long it'll wear.

Short-measure besides; that alone was twice as much as his "saving" 5 was twice as much as nis 'saving cents.

It was thin, too; some loss there; don't know how much.

There was too much dryer in it. The maker made something on that; he didn't.

Taking it altogether, he didn't make much by that 5 cents.

Go by the name: and the name is Devoe lead-and-zinc.

Majestic Theatre-A success was predicted for the professional produc-tion of Samuel E. The Boston press, without an exception, did not hesitate to proclaim it the best show of its kind ever seen in the city. The music was spoken of as second to mone in recent years. The comedy provoked continued mirth. The costumes and seenery were admitted to be second to those of no other production and the girls—gracious! Every newspaper in Boston devoted at least 200 words to proclaiming the beauty, winsonneness and general attractiveness of the feminine chorus.

Quaere:—The lease which I have on the house which I occupy does not state whether or not I have the right to sub-lease. I desire to rent the house for the summer and would like to know whether I can do so without obtaining the consent of the owner. G. C.

Answer:-Yes. A contractual right can ordinarily be assigned unless for some reason of public policy, or un-less a personal relationship enters into the contract. Thus a contract be tween a factory owner and a superin-tendent for services could not of course be assigned by the superintendent. But it is well settled that a lease can be either assigned or sub-let you may make will not of itself formatory.

Quaere:—Will you kindly tell me whether in Massachusetts a will made by a man or woman under guardianship for being a spendthrift is valid. ©. W. K.

Answer:-The law provides that any person of full age, and sound mind may make a will. If the spendthrift is over 21 and of sound mind then he could make a will unless prevented by the provisions of the sections of the Revised Laws relating to the guardianship of spendthrifts. These sections provide that, "if a person by excessive drinking, gaming, idleness or debauchery of any kind, so spends, wastes or lessens his estate as to expose himself or his family to want or suffering" then a guardian may be appointed over him, whereupon "all gifts, sales or transfers of personal property" and "sales and conveyances of land" made by the spendthrift are void. The question then is whether or not a will would operate either as a "transfer" of personal property or as a "conveyance" of real estate. The word "transfer" might cover a gift by will, while in Rhode Island it has been held under a similar statute that one under guar-dianship is not precluded from making a will passing real estate by a prohibition against "conveyances" of real estate. Hence if the words of the statute be followed literally the will would be invalid as to personal property and valid as to real estate. The question however has never been decided in Massachusetts, and it is impossible to say how the would construe these words. In view of the context it seems quite probable that the Court might hold the word "transfer" not to apply to a gift by will, and therefore would consider the will valid as to the real and per-sonal property. It might well be said on the other hand that the intention of the law is to protect the spendthrift and his family by preventing him from exercising any control whatso-ever over his property, and that this intention would be defeated if he were allowed to make a will in favor, possibly, of some creditor.

Quaerae:—A. dies leaving by his ast will and testament all of his property to be divided equally among his last will and testament all of his prop-erty to be divided equally among his nephews and nieces. Under such a will could children of nephews and nieces whose parents are still living, and who are legatees under the will claim anything. M. G. L.

Answer:-No. The term nephews and nieces has been held in Massachusetts to have its natural meaning of children of brothers or sisters, and does not include grand chidren of brothers or sisters, in the absence of any circumstances clearly showing that the testator intended to include them. In this case the fact that the grandnephews and grandnieces are otherwise provided for shows beyond question that they were not compre-hended in the term "nephews and they must have this important article of their costuming made to order. La Marguerite is a hand-made, readyto-wear corset so perfect in fit and so exact in measurement that it differs not at all from the made-to-order not at all from the made-to-order article, except in doing away with the necessity of preliminary measurements and repeated fittings. The best batistes and coutils in white or delicate colorings, plain or of varied designs in silk finish, the best of whale-hone and kid-covered from tstels, which are removable so that the corset may be laundered without detriment, go into La Marguerite. Every woman knows how important it is that her corset should be adapted to the individual lines of her figure. In buying LaMarguerite she has the advantage of the services of expert corsetieres, whether she is purchasing the style at $3.50 or the one at $5.00. Difference in material alone accounts for difference in price; the workmanship and lines of one are exactly as good as another, be the price the lowest, or $5. $8. $10 or $12. Newton and Newton Centre residents were the victims of a simple but efficacious method of separating them from their money last Friday when a young man appeared with bogus telegrams and demanded and received a fee averaging about fifty cents in each case. The telegrams were in the usual envelope and fellow had a receipt book in regular form. Among those victimized were Rev. R. K. Smith, J. K. Taylor, C. F. Sproat, J. A. Hill, M. E. Thompson, Miss Ella Grow and May Hannegan of Newton and T. A. Williams, E. S. Green, S. H. Green and Cecilia Hayes of Newton Centre.

Complaints regarding the matter were made at police headquarters and Officer Conroy soon captured Leo McCarthy, aged 19 of Cambridge, while delivering a telegram on Elm-wood street. Several blank forms were found on his person and some small change. In court Saturday morning, McCarthy was charged with in the absence of some restriction in the larceny of $5.90 and sentenced to the lease or by statute. On Saturday next Burton Holmes will give the third in his double series of illustrated travelogues at Tremont Temple, the subject being "Ireland."
This will be given at the matinee at 2:30 o'clock and repeated in the evening at 8:15. Mr. Holmes visited Ireland this last summer and there found material for a travelogue which has proved to be one of the most popular, as it certainly is one of the finest, in his entire repertory. The motion pictures as well as the still colored views are unusually fine.

The Players.

In Temple Hall, Newtonville, Thurs. day and Friday evenings of last week the forty first series of performances of the eighteenth season of the Players took place. Arthur Law's three act comedy "The New Boy" was giv en by a cast composed of Arthur Hollis, Charles E. Hatfield, Waldo Glidden, C. F. Johnson, Jr., Edgar W. Leonard, Frank B. Lawler, Miss Bertha Eddy, Miss Mary B. Lewis and Miss Isabel A. Southgate. The acting manager was Miss Carcline L. Freeman, stage manager, Mr. Charles E. Hatfield and the properties were in charge of Mr. S. Dike Hooper. Music was provided by Owen's orches tra and the ushers were Messrs Harry L. Burrage, Philip R. Spaulding and Henry Whitmore.

Minstrel Show.

To say that the Waban Tennis Courts Minstrels were a success is not sufficient, the word must be used in the superlative degree and then falls short of the effect produced last week Friday and Saturday in Waban Hall.

Possibly part of this is due to the fact that the end "men" were ladies and the interlocutor was of the same sex. There is no doubt in the minds of the audience that the innovation added largely to the enjoyment of the affair. Mr. C. L. Hovey whose name was given six different ways program furnished the music for the ongs and dances.

It is impossible, of course to relate songs and dances.

LA MARGUERITE CORSET.

The interluctor was Mrs. H. S. Bosson, the tambos were Mrs. Hill, Mrs. Buffum, Messrs Dana and Bossor while the circle was composed of Messrs Spencer, Crain, Hill, Parker, Ambrose, Knott, Lamkin, Buffum, Brigham and Robinson.

Songs were rendered by Mrs. Buffum, Mrs. Hill, and Messrs Bosson, Ambrose, Brigham and Dana of the circle and the Minstrels were assisted by Mr. F. L. Wood, Helen P. Le-Clear and Mile Roberta. The show closed with a Monstrous Megatherian Melange by Howard Lamkin, C. P. Tobin, E. H. Robinson and W. M. Buffum and a Japanese Seranade, the

BENEATH THE GILDED DOME.

As the springtime is with us and the long winter has gone, or rather as we have gone away from the winter, the faith in an early adjournment grows stronger in the legislature and that faith is participated in to a great extent by both the presiding

Far be it for the writer to lift a cloud of doubt, for, the vision is too lovely to be disturbed by any suggestions even, and perhaps it is to wait until we get to the bridge that so many previous legislative bodies have been obliged to cross, before anybody cries "low bridge." Indeed it really looks as though prorogation might come in time for the members to get home for Decoration Day, but it should be remembered that the prorogation egg is a hard egg to hatch, even when the shell may be unusually thin, as it seems to be this year. sired to make a record in the early adjournment line, but most of them have closed their official eyes with their hopes unrealized. President Soule hoped to see it in his day, and Speaker Myers was permitted only to look upon the promised land afait off: not even his impetuosity could land him on the hither side of the shining flood of a late spring freshet. The longer the days, the longer the session and the harder it is to work, the harder it seems to be to stop work, at least to stop that which is called work. Beside that, it is well to take up in mind that there are many nuts to crack yet, and many snarls to unrayel. There is the gas law that was made two years ago with everybody's consent. A lot of with everybody's consent. A lot of people have come up the Hill this year to confess that they were blind two years ago, and now, having had clay put upon their eyes, they sec. Even such bright eyes as those of Moran. Anderson, Lawson and Colthurst seem to have had a cataract two years ago, but now they see, and they see many things, even things that are not so. Another matter that is going to delay the adjournment is the threatened Lawson investigation. Of course, Mr. Lawson has obtained the proof for which he has offered $10,000. That amount of money would buy a good deal of the sort of proof satisfactory to him, and once obtain-ed of course he will make the earth tremble. Then the Public Lighting committee of two years ago, as well as the present one, will have justice in original bales meted out to them. It took whole broadsides in the Bos ton papers for Lawson to tell what was to be done with these committees with the evidence he was offering $10,000 to obtain and no questions asked.

There are numerous other matters yet to be disposed of, and which will consume considerable time when they

It is given out upon good authority that a split between Governor Douglas and the Republican wing at the State House is soon to take place, and that it is to be caused by the selection of W. T. A. Fitzgerald as the successor to Commissioner Curtis on the Police Board. Fitzgerald is known at the State House to have been a very offensive partisan while in the legislature, and that he has not by any means forsaken his legislative methods. It is not forgotten that while a member of the Senate he went over to the House one day and undertook to "run the House" in a sort of City Hall fashion, seeking to take the control of affairs out of the hands of Speaker Myers who soon gave Mr. Fitzgerald to understand that a Boston boss could not run the House of Representatives until after he had been elected to the office of Speaker, and perhaps not then. Governor Douglas should understand, and he doubtless does, that the Republican Council is very ready to endorse his official action, whenever such action can be approved, but when it comes to W. T. A. F. the limit has been reached. If offensive partisanship must be endured, it must be on the other side of the fence, for then it will not be so offensive to us and not so offensive to some Democrats. House of Representatives until after he had been elected to the office of not so offensive to some Democrats. The present indications are that Mayor Collins may induce Governo Douglas to nominate his devoted follower, and that Mr. Fitzgerald will at that moment come about as near be ing a Police Commissioner as he will ever experience. Even the nomination of Fitzgerald would retard the progress of "Home Rule" very decid-

There are some indications at the State House that Providence (R. I.) is more to be desired with some, than the providence which lies in another direction. Hearings of the petitions for charters between Boston and Provi dence are still being held, and some of the evidence has proven extremely interesting. The maps hanging in the Countities room show three proposed lines, one called the Blood line OUTLOOK for $3.60 and marked very appropriately in red, another called the Shaw-Kidder-Peabody line and as appropriately marked in old gold, and the third, called the Stone and Webater line, marked in black (perhaps they will all look black after the Committee report). All these lines expect, by the promot ers, to pay a handsome return (to the promoters, at least) and provide the travelling public with increased facilities for travel. One of these days the travelling public will have hard work to stay at home, the facilities to travel will be so extensive, and it will be so much cheaper to travel than it will be to stay at home. One of the most interesting events trans-piring during these hearings, occurred when one of the committeemen asked the question of the representatives of two of the lines, if they would be willing to hand in sealed proposals, or bids, for a charter, the charter going to the road bidding the most money. This interesting suggestion might be called a charter up at auction by the Massachusetts legislature It should be added that the member making the suggestion stipulated that the money derived by the sale of the charter should go into the State treasury, instead of being divided mong the members of the committee. The aforesald map, showing as it did, all the roads already constructed within and adjacent to the territory, indicated that the people residing there were not suffering for travelling facilities possibly as much as the stockholders were suffering for returns on their money. Meanwhile the steam roads are standing back and have adopted the motto of Puck, 'What fools these mortals be.'

If the time has not already arrived. the day is sure at hand when the committee on taxation will be the most important and difficult commit-tee to be selected by the President and Speaker. Already the problems before that committee call for the wisest and most masterful solution. Any one who has attended the hear ings of the committee during the present session must have been convinced that we are approaching precious near the danger line, and that some day it will not be the debt limit, but the tax limit that will come like a ghost to disturb those who must shape the ways and means of government. Edgar J. Bliss

EIGHTY-ONE YEARS OLD.

Mr. Rodney M. Lucas, of West Newton, passed his eighty-first birth-day, March 27, and considering his advanced age is in good health and spirits. He has been a familiar figure on our streets for over three score years, and can truthfully be called one of our "oldest inhabitants." He is a fitting example of that class which is so often referred to in comparing present conditions with those of long ago, and his memory retains clearly incidents and happenings that to the present generation are but tra-ditions of the dim and distant past. Though his years have been over half a score beyond the psalmists "span of life" he is comparatively active and makes his daily rounds as fancy dictates, or cares for his cosy home on Hunter street, where his good wife does her part and helps bear the burdens and share the pleasures of their daily life. His eighty-first birthday was passed quietly in his usual rou tine, and he no doubt flattered him-self that he had kept it from publicity, but when a ring called him to the door in the early evening he found a bevy of family relatives and close which proved an eminent success. A pleasant evening followed, devoted to card playing, conversation and reand Mr. and Mrs. Fred L. Cook,

Sand on the Sidewalks.

Owing to the icy condition of the city sidewalks, more sand than usual has been scattered upon them during small pebbles which are very unpleasant to walk upon and unless they are removed people will have a pretty good excuse for walking on the sod-ding Some people are cleaning (?) their sidewalks by sweeping the whole mass into the sedding. A layer of sand is death to grass. starting and vigorous growth is all that will save the sod grass. If thrifty the morning dew and the wet condi tion from light showers will keep pedestrians at bay. If the grass does not start they will walk on the edge next the concrete and soon a narrow path will be well defined. The way to avoid the latter calamity and to keep the sod good is to sweep the sand in from both sides of the sidewalk into a ridge in the middle and then to take it up and to throw it out into the street. Our sidewalks are a part of our street system but while they are in the condition in which they are often the "sand papered" who keep their lawns in fine condition seem to be oblivious to the accumulation of rubbish in front of their houses. Five minutes labor once week would keep the sidewalk and street free from litter. In my walks on the streets I have seen banana peelings, old hats, crippled umbrellas, broken bottles and what not lying in front of nice houses, because the proprietor of said house did not throw the rubbish there and consequently would not remove it, so it remains ing for the periodical street cleaning. Let us do better

Miss Cobb, chairman of the evening
School Committee presented the following report which was received:
The evening schools opened on Oct.

Claflin school-house with three teachers, and the English school in the ers, and the English school in the Horace Mann schoolhouse with four Horace Mann schoolhouse with four teachers.

The drawing school had an average attendance of about 30 -a smaller attendance than usual owing to night work in the machine shops from which many of the pupils come. On account of the size of the school two teachers only were needed; one, therefore, was dismissed. The school was closed on Dec. 23d.

The English school, on the contrary, was much larger than last year, having a total enrolment of 213 with an average attendance of 88.75. 45 of those enrolled came only one or two evenings; some left at Christmas

To accommodate the unusually large number of pupils an extra room was prepared and another teacher was ap-pointed and owing to the larger ap-propriation granted for 1905 the school was continued until March 15-the term lasting 62 nights.

Most of the Poles and Italians were unable to sneak. English, when they the closing inglit, was such as to be heartily commended.

The programme for the entertainment was wholly volunteered and consisted of 18 numbers, each one of those who took part trying to do what he or she could to help along and make it successful.

The carnest endeavor of all these pupils and the resulting good to the city from their further education is practical evidence of the importance of this department of the school system and the committee feels that the appropriation should be such as to enable the continuation of this school for 20 weeks each year. for 20 weeks each year

How British Cities Manage Public Utilities

How John Jasper, Blacksmith, of London Lives In Comfort In a Corner House at a Rental of $2.88 Per Week

[Copyright, 1904, by Frederick Upham Adams.]

III. THE first estate outside the county of London purchased by the council was in Norbury. The site is thirty-one acres in extent and it situated a mile and a quarter berond the county boundary. On this tract the council is creeting 762 cotinges with accommodations for 5,800 persons. The rents will range from $1.50 to $2.75 a week.

The greatest progress has been made with the Totterdown fields estate, in Tooting. On this tract of thirty-nine acres nearly 800 cottages have been acres nearly 800 cottages have been-completed and are occupied, and the plans call for a total of 1,244 cot-tages. In this venture the London county council is investing $2,000,000. The cottages are built of brick and stucco, with the roofs and chimneys surmounted with the inevitable Eng-lish chimney not—as, of course you.

in England.

The cottages of Tooting are built to stand for hundreds of years, with little or any external repairs. The streets are paved, and when an Englishman paves a street his grandchildren need not replace it. Let us enter one of these cottages.

We will first inspect one which rents for 12 shillings a week, or $2.88 in our money. This is a corner house, with light on three sides. In the rear is a yard and garden plot 38 by 55 feet. Garden truck grows all the year around in this climate, and many of the tenants of Tooting have no difficulty in raising the vegetables required for their personal use. The housewife has all of the rooms needed in which to hang and dry clothes, and her husband are intulated by the rooms and her husband.

The cottage is a two story one, with five rooms and a kitchen. The living room is 12 by 13 and the parior 0 by 11 feet. The kitchen is about 8 by 10, and the three bedrooms average 100 square feet. The floors are of hardwood throughout, and the same is true of the other woodwork. The walls are papered and the ceiling calcimined. The interior work compares with that of a Rew York or Chicago flat which rents at from $30 to $40 a month. All of the John Jasper, blacksmith, and his wife, mother and four children live in this cottage. It was a holiday, and most of the men folks were home. The blacksmith came to the door and bade

"How do you like it here?" I asked when we had looked through all of the rooms and listened to Mr. Jasper's plans for a combined hothouse and dog

Does it cost you more for rent than it did when you lived in a tenement

"It costs just the same," he said; "but, bless you, look at what we have now and what we had then. I never how all what we had then. I never thought when I was a boy that the time would ever come when I would lease the line for a short period, which thought when I was a loy that the time would ever come when I would live in a house all to myself."

The housing work of the London coun-council is under the direct charge of S. G. Burgess, who has served as manager since 1801. There is no civil service—in the American sense of the word—in England. Therefore when the county council formed a housing department and wished a manager they advertised for him. For twenty years Mr. Burgess had been actively engaged in the construction of middle class dwellings. He had served with distinction as manager of three great private companies. The London county council. companies. The London county council operating new arteries of transporta-decided that he was the best man for thon. decided that he was the best man for the place. They therefore offered Mr. Burgess a certain salary, and after due consideration he accepted their offer. He had just completed the construction of five large lodging houses for Lord Rowton, designed for providing better accommodations for 4,500 men. These structures are of the same type as the Mills hotels of New York, which are occupied by about 1,500 male lodgers. Mr. Burgess is an acknowledged authority on architecture and construction, a man of decided executive ability and great energy.

He has never been active in politics.

He has never been active in politics.

London's lack of progress in street

tion, a man of decided executive against and great energy.

He has never been active in politics.

He has no political pull. Thousands of men work under him, but he wieds no political influence. Millions upon millions of dollars pass through his hands, but there is not the shadow of a suspifrom Westminster bridge to thought there is not the shadow of a suspicion that one penny of it sticks to his fingers. He receives $4.000 a year in salary. No partisan faction or individual aspires to supersede him. If he chooses, the position is his for life. The great municipal enterprises of London and other cities in Great Britain are filled by men of this type.

In the course of a long interview Mr. Burgess thus epitomised the work and plane under his charge:

"At an expense of about $5,600,000

we have demolished thirty-six neres of we inve demonster three so dilapidated and insanitary buildings, which were occupied by 10.555 persons. In the place of these old structures we have erected model ones which accommodate 10.052 persons. Houses and cettages for 7.025 persons have also here, completed at an expense exceed. cottages for 7.025 persons have also been completed at an expense exceeding $2,000,000. In addition to this plans have been prepared and land purchased for 10.430 new tenements and 630 lodging rooms. These will afford accommodation for 71,055 persons, and the total cost, including the land, is estimated at $16,000,000. It will thus be seen that the London county council has provided and is providing for 15,440 tenements and 1.848 lodging house rooms for 97,132 persons at a total outrooms for 97,132 persons at a total out-lay of $23,694,080. These tenements contain one, two, three, four, five and six room apartments."

All of the fragmentary statements and rumors concerning the extent of the housing scheme planned by the London rauthorities stak into insignif-cance compared with the plain facts and figures. It is not a reform; it is a revolution

Closely allied with the task of housing the working classes of London is the problem of providing cheap and rapid transportation for those who live in these suburban houses built by the municipality. English capitalistic stu-pidity well nigh reached its limit at the hands of those men who found selves the owners of street railway franchises and plants.

While private enterprise in the United States and in other countries was engerly pushing the work of discarding horse traction for mechanical and electrical, the somnoient owners of such properties in Great Britain were blind and deaf to the splendid progress hang and dry clothes, and her husband can indulge his inborn desire to keep a dog. John Jasper, blacksmith, and his wife, mother and four children live in (exclusive of any allowance for past or future profits of the undertaking) of the tramway, such value to be in the case of difference determined by referee appointed by the board of trade on the application of either party."

There were fifteen private street railway companies operating in the county of London. The first one which had its franchise expire was promptly notified by the council that its plant would be purchased. The company made a claim for $3,000,000. The county scoffed open air. "Its air new to me, but it would be like going to jail to have to go back to the barracks where we lived in Lambeth. Never knew what it was to be clean or to breathe fresh air till we came out here."

The company appealed to the high we came out here."

The council appealed, and the court of appealed, and the court of appealed. peals affirmed the referee's award, and their decision was confirmed b house of lords. That settled it, was in 1894.

THE SPY SYSTEM

It is the Very Soul of the Govern-ment in Russia.

Russia is pre-eminently the land of spies. In Moseow in the streets agents of the police are stationed every 500 In addition secret agents watch the houses day and night, one being althe nouses day and light, one being ar-lotted to every four houses, and in every house is another spy—the porter. Go where you will, you are never out of the watchful eye of the pollee. You brush against spies in your hotel, as in nrush against spies by our hote, as in the theaters; in a restaurant, as in the drawing room of a friend. It is ridiculously easy to recognize those you meet in the fashionable resorts. They have cyldently been instructed to disguise themselves as gentlemen, and for one of them the livery of a gentleman is a frock coat, a silk bat and always, by rain or sunlight, an umbrella. The famous third police! A stranger might fancy that hi an open cab, talking French or English to his friend, he would at least be safe from surveillance. But his friend will touch him significantly and speak of the weather. The fat cabby on the box, sommolent, with white hair and good paternal eyes, may be a spy more skilled in the guise themselves as gentlemen, and for eyes, may be a spy more skilled in the languages than the traveling stranger, and if the cabman has been found loltering near the great clubs, the ho-tels or the embassies the chances are strong that he is. A subtler police than that of the third section—the akrana, which has its ramifications in every capital in Europe and America—com-pletes this great system of explonage. Its mesh is over every man in Russia.

SECOND RENAISSANCE.

Another Revival of Art, It is Cinimed, Is Needed.

In order to reform our present stereo-typed methods of art we want a sec-ond renalssance. For long years we have done nothing but turn out from our colleges young men stuffed with useless scientific lumber, and they very quickly lose it all, and there is nothing to take its place. This is not to be wondered at when throughout Europe there is such a neglect of art in our ed-ucation. It may be replied to me that the inventions of science compensate for the deficiency, but these inventions are almost exclusively if not quite a mere increase in the power of the hol-ily senses and faculties—the telegraph in that of the tongue, the telephone in that of the car, the rallway in that of that of the ear, the rallway in that of the legs, the photographic science in that of the eye-and these inventions leave in ignorance the more intellectual part of the individual. Your portrait can be taken, your voice boxed up—this is extraordinary—but the soul which commands, the god which is in the head, is forgotten.

And yet the means for altering this state of things is near at hand, is beneath our eyes. We have still the same nature that inspired those anonymous neath our eyes. We mive still the same nature that inspired those anionymous sculptors to give us the Gothle; we still have a sufficient number of Gothle masterpieces intact—so many epitomes of nature, as I have said—to show what can be done by the man who starte with this victim comp. to her starts with his vision open to her teaching.—Auguste Rodin in North

Climate and Politics.

The climate of Australia is the chief factor in fashioning Australian poli-tics. If it is advanced it is because the sun there has forced an early development. Girls here reach maturity velopment. Girls here reach maturity two or three years earlier than in America, and countries count by generations. Meanwhile perpetual summer and continual smilight are sapping individual energies. Even the American who comes here soon fluds that sustained hustling is a physical impossibility. Let him spend three or four years in the country, and he will cease to wonder at the laws for an eight hour day and the early closing of shops. day and the early closing of shops. The winter is only another summer—cooler, it is true, but not cold enough to be invigorating.—Burriss Graham in Booklover's Magazine.

A North Carolina lawyer was trying a case before a jury, being counsel for the prisoner, a man charged with making "mountain dew." The judge was the prisoner, a man charged with making "mountain dew". The judge was very hard on him, and the jury brought in a verdict of guilty. The lawyer moved for a new trial. The judge defined the motion and remarked. "The court and the jury think the prisoner a knave and a fool." After a moment's silence "the lawyer answered: "The slience the lawyer answered: "The prisoner wishes me to say that he is perfectly satisfied. He has been tried by a court and a jury of his peers."

DEATH OF WILLARD P. PLIMPION.

Mr. Willard Pratt Plimpton, who died last week Thursday at his home in West Newton, after a long period of failing health, was one of the oldest residents of the city, having lived in that village for over fifty years. He was born at Foxboro, Mass, May 7, 1821 and taught school in West Dedham and Foxboro until 1848 when he entered the wholesale millinery business in Boston under the firm name of Carpenter, Plimpton and Co, retiring in 1881.

For many years he has lived quietly at West Newton, serving as an assist-ant assessor for 12 years from 1889 to 1900, when his health began to fail. He is survived by one son, Waldo L., and three daughters, Mrs. Geo. F. Newell, Mrs. Cora G. Johnson, and Mrs. Chas. H. Whittlesey.

Funeral services were held from his late residence on Chestunt st., Saturday afternoon, conducted by Rev. Julian C. Jaynes, and the interment was at Newton Cemetery.

A Protest.

The text of the remonstrance to the emoval of car tracks on Homer street

To the Honorable Board of Aldermen of the City of Newton,
Respectfully represent your Petitioners, owners or occupants of premises abutting upon or in the immediate neighborhood of Homer Street in the Sixth Ward of said City whose property rights in many cases and whose just and equitable privileges in every case would be seriously affected if the location granted to the Newton and Boston Street Railway Company in said street were to be revoked and fluctracks removed therefrom.

That, Whereas, by reason of the granting of said location, the laying of said tracks, and the establishing for arborn twelve years, certain of the undersigned have made permanent investments in the neighborhood of said street, upon the entirely reasonable expectation that the privileges attendant upon such service were to continue,

And, Whereas, all of the under-tinue,

And, Whereas, all of the undersigned, having applied the test of conditions of this neighborhood for a signed, having applied the test of daily experience to the residential conditions of this neighborhood for a term of years, unhesitatingly pronounce that the present convenience for transportation materially enhances the value of Real Estate in this district for residential purposes, multiplies the opportunities for selling or leasing, and has become almost a necessity to them and their families, and that they should not be deprived of said convenience except for grave and substantial reasons,

And, Whereas, it is our firm belief that the reasons heretofore given for the removal of said tracks cannot be fairly designated as either grave or substantial, but have been on the other hand in many cases trivial and unfairly prejudicial, and in all cases framed with a total disregard for the vested property rights and the entirely reasonable conveniences of your Petitioners,

And, Whereas, the removal of said tracks to Commonwealth Avenue would not confer any considerable benefit upon other residents, but would practically extinguish our existing conveniences of transportation in inclement weather, particularly for children riding to and from school; and, on account of the unsatisfactory condition of the streets connecting Homer Street with the Boulevard in this Section the families of your petitioners would be practically without car service after dark at all seasons,

And, Whereas, the removal of said

And, Whereas, the removal of said tracks would necessarily require immediate, substantial and expensive re-surfacing of said street and construction of sidewalks so as to conform with the property valuations and general residential character of this neighborhood and the reasonable accommodation of its residents and would also properly require substantial improvements and construction of sidewalks in Water, Cedar and Morton Streets.

And, Whereas, so far as your Petitioners can learn the assurances by those advocating the removal of said tracks that the improvements necessary to prevent grave injury to the properties affected would be certainly and thoroughly made, have been vague and uncertain and entirely out of proportion to the gravity of the result upon the vested rights of your Petitioners.

Wherefore, your Petitioners respect fully pray that your Honorable Board refuse to grant the order revoking said location and removing said tracks.
